The Huron College Bulletin
Huron College
Huron, South Dakota

Dear Mr. Horton:

Thank you very much for the special edition of the Huron College Bulletin which you were so thoughtful to send me.

I have read the Bulletin with a great deal of interest and particularly noted the reference made therein to the commencement address delivered by my father.

Once again, many thanks and kindest regards.

Sincerely,

PIONEER COLLEGE

A HISTORY OF PIERRE UNIVERSITY
AND HURON COLLEGE 1883-1958

A DIRECTORY OF GRADUATES AND EX-STUDENTS

EDITED BY GARNER HORTON

PREFACE

The editor of this book feels something like those pioneers who came to Pierre in 1883 to found Pierre University. Basis for the feeling is the fact that the content of this piece, like the "university", was gotten together on what was available and a large measure of faith.

A great deal of the book "breaks new ground." The alumni section of the directory is the exception. A thorough publication in that field was done in 1950 by Dr. Ella McIntire.

So far as the editor knows, this is the first attempt at a comprehensive study of the college history and ex-student lists. Consequently, error and omission are certain to have occurred. The faith of the editor is, that by laying the foundation represented here, future editions of the college history and directory will build toward completeness and perfection.

It is hoped that the book can be revised and republished periodically. Readers can help by notifying the editor of errors and omissions coming to their attention. As will become apparent, much added information is needed in the ex-student listings.

Hundreds of documents were collected and studied in gathering the materials for this publication. A permanent, cataloged file is now being established for these documents and further historic pieces coming into the possession of the college.

Huron College begins to bring together the cloth of its traditions. The editor is pleased to have had a part in that process.

The Seed and the Soil—1883-1884

This was the place. Beyond the hill lines of Minnesota, beyond the rolling country of the Big Sioux, and across the placid James, on a bluff overlooking the muddy Missouri—here was the place.

This was a young, raw country—a territory with statehood still six years away. It had not been long since the wagons came and the first sod huts rose against an endless expanse of sky and grass. Here was a land of desolation—of still empty acres—but a land filled with plans and dreams.

Among those who had been planning and dreaming were two pioneer Presbyterian ministers, Dr. H. P. Carson and M. E. Chapin. Returning from a Presbytery meeting in Sioux City in the spring of 1881, the two men had paced the deck of a steamboat and talked of a university—a college—to take its place in the developing territory of Dakota.¹

To some, their plan might have seemed presumptuous—building a college in a land not yet a state—this prairie land with its sparse population. But the two men had faith in the future of this territory and in their college. Their faith was communicated to others, and the newly organized Presbytery of Southern Dakota, meeting at Volga in 1882, issued the following statement:

"The Presbytery of Southern Dakota having declared its purpose to found and establish, as soon as practicable, an Educational Institution in which shall be taught the Higher Branches of Learning, and appointed the undersigned as a Special Committee to inaugurate and carry forward the movement, we would hereby so inform the interested public and earnestly invite bids, proposals and correspondence looking toward the locating, establishing, and endowing of such an institution. Any person willing to donate money or land to a College or University in Dakota south of the 46th parallel, is most cordially urged to drop us a line. If your town desires an Institution of Learning located within or adjacent to its limits, please write to either Rev. H. P. Carson, Scotland, D. T., or Rev. R. B. Farrar, Volga, D. T., or Rev. W. S. Peterson, Huron, Dakota."¹

Several towns had expressed interest in the invitation. With Rev. A. K. Baird of Iowa acting as speaker, a Presbytery committee visited Huron, Mitchell, and Pierre. The first two cities, then involved in a fight for the capital of the territory, could not satisfy the needs of the committee. Pierre, feeling it had been eliminated in the capital fight, offered 20 acres of land and $13,000 in money for the locating of the college. The offer was accepted.¹

This, then, was the place. On a bluff known as "Rattlesnake Hill" in Pierre, S. D., overlooking the muddy Missouri, a college was born in the year 1883. They called it first the Presbyterian University of Southern Dakota and then Pierre University. On its campus was one wooden building costing $3000. The building accommodated the boarding department, housed the college's first president, Rev. T. M. Findley and wife, and afforded recitation rooms for students.¹

The college was incorporated on July 6, 1883. On July 18 of the same year, the trustees named Rev. Thomas M. Findley president of the new institution. On September 26, 1883, the college opened its first term.¹

Three students enrolled.

"We state the facts in the case," President Findley said at the time, denying that 11 to 20 had enrolled, "there were only three students at the first chapel exercise on the morning of the 27th."¹

But, by December 5 of the same year, Findley was able to report that "the student body numbered twenty-four of whom one was sick making only twenty-three at work."¹

This was the place, and the college, in a territory still six years from statehood. This was a land only recently settled, but settled quickly in the days of "land booms."

This was the college—a college that could not then or cannot now be separated from the land in which it existed and exists, the territory of Southern Dakota—the state of South Dakota—this was the barometer by which the college would rise and fall—and rise again.

A sparse, naked land, a land of necessities too young to be rich. In this prairie country, President Findley "had the usual experiences of college presidents varied to suit local conditions and pioneer surroundings—he was full of hopes and problems. In November, 1883, he attended Presbytery and reported "urgent need of encouraging words and more especially money to pay running expenses."¹

And this was one uniting thread which would run all through the fabric of the college's history. To a private college, in Southern Dakota or elsewhere, financial aid from its friends is the life-blood—the measure by which it lives or dies.

In 1883, not much, in dollars, was needed or obtained, "—a financial agent, Miss Cleveland, had been East soliciting. In five months she secured $517.75. The president says that board (at the college) never goes beyond $2.46 a week and that living at the college is so cheap that he was forced to warn the public in print that already the institution has received bogus students who came to get a cheap living."¹

Not much money was needed, and not much was forthcoming. The college appealed to the churches, but the churches themselves "were small and dependent upon Home Mission aid." Never-the-less, some of the churches did give. Noted were amounts ranging from $50 to $60 by the churches at Scotland, Aberdeen, and Huron."¹

First funds for the endowment of the college came from the Presbyterian Church in Huron in the amount of $5.71. "The Presbytery by resolution endowed the college with $50,000, but the banks, unfortunately, did not discount the Presbytery's resolution—"²

Largest windfall for the young college came from the McCormick family of Chicago, whose aid made possible a brick building of three stories costing $20,000 in 1884. Eventually there were three buildings on or near the campus; McCormick Hall, Pioneer Hall, and a home for the President.¹

So lay the naked campus on a hill in East Pierre where the railroad had recently opened a second depot. Pierre, then, was at the end of the railroad line, and drew further trade from traffic up the river. "Pierre once had a hard name, but among the 500 people now living within a mile of the college, there is but one—who persists in working on the Sabbath day."¹

On the campus those first years were the seeds of later growth. "There were literary societies . . . some kicking of the football . . . but dancing is an unmitigated evil. The propensity to it has already prevented several young ladies from entering the college."¹

"Classification was difficult. He (Findley) solved it by dividing the students into three groups . . . Some of the students had to be converted to accept a true faith in classical studies . . . two well advanced students started in Greek . . . part of their board was paid to secure their attendance and have it said that Greek was being studied."¹

The seeds of the future for the college's faculty were sown, in those first days, by three persons. Those first three in a long line of distinguished scholars who were to serve the college were President Findley, his wife, Lou Gregory Findley, and Rev. George F. McAfee (also Pierre's Presbyterian minister).³

On October 11, 1884, the college, which had been known as Presbyterian University of Southern Dakota, was renamed Pierre University.

Research fails to reveal a complete, documented list of the student body during the 1883-1884 term, but it is known that the following were in the college at some time during the year: Bessie Tillotson, Winnie Geltz, Ada Baillie, Libbie Rowlands, Kate Loudon, Frank Farrar, C. J. Ratcliffe, Effie Hargis, Mazie Crossley, H. Hamill, Laura Templeton, J. B. McCullough, and S. Dunwoody.⁴

Listed in the "Second Annual Catalog of Pierre 'U,' 1884-1885 are 10 college students: Farrar, George C. Findley, Eugenia M. Miller, Harris S. Miller, Ratcliffe, Crosley, Dunwoody, Horgis, Dora Hays, and William Warne.

Faculty for 1884-1885 included, again, President Findley and his wife, plus H. P. Wilber, C. J. Ratcliffe, and Miss E. E. Hargis. The latter two were students assigned as instructors, another student, George C. Findley, served as librarian for the 200-300 volumes then possessed by the infant college.⁵

Several of the early founders had been appointed to the board of trustees at the college's beginning. H. P. Carson was president. Coe I. Crawford, later governor of S. Dak., was vice president. Secretary was R. B. Farrar, and treasurer H. O. Fishback. Other members included W. S. Peterson, J. P. Williamson, J. D. McLean, J. B. Pomeroy, Robert Ewart, William Church, C. A. Bliss, and George McAfee.⁵

The curriculum of Pierre University was weighted heavily towards the classical and the scientific. Among the required courses were three years of Latin and Greek; four years of science, ranging from geometry through physics, chemistry, and geology; history, literature, and elocution; along with two years of Christianity and Morality Science.

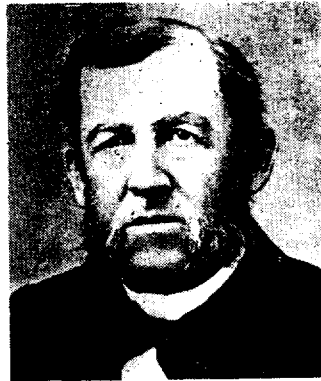

Among the electives were French, German, and Civil Engineering.

The seeds had been planted for a Christian college. Consequently, student attendance at "Sabbath morning preaching service and Sabbath School" was required; also "a daily chapel service" was required.⁵

The college moved strictly in another direction! "All students are expected to connect themselves with a college literary society, and on failure to do so will be required to prepare two extra essays each term and read same before the whole institution." Societies existing at the college in 1884 were the "Occidental" and "Athenian." The "Pierian" in 1885 was followed by the "McCormick" and "ANKM" in 1886.⁵

A student entering Pierre U. could expect to pay $36 per year in tuition, $5 in fees, $2.40 a week for board, and $3 a year for a furnished room (unfurnished rooms were free). "Books, music, lights, fuel, and washing extra," the Pierre U. catalog warned, but added "Provision, by the liberality of private persons, will be made for part payment of the expenses of a limited number of students."⁵

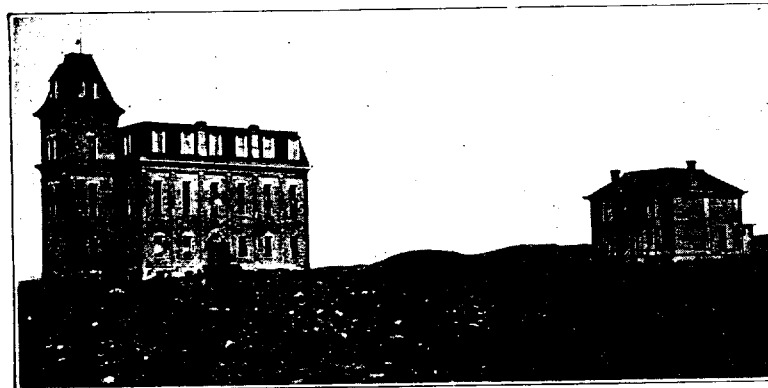

And these were the seeds of all that came after. What had been sown would grow, sparsely like the land of its nurture, but with some of the toughness of the land, too. The plans would foliage and wither—but never quite die—then foliage again.

The Dream and Destruction — 1885-1897

In the spring of 1885, President Findley resigned his post with the college.

Named to fill his place was Dr. William M. Blackburn, a minister, scholar, and internationally known author in the field of church literature.

Dr. Blackburn had filled pulpits in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. As a teacher he had occupied the chair of church history at the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. As an administrator, he had just completed a term as president of the University of North Dakota.¹

Writing books based on extensive research—research which had carried him to many points in Europe—Dr. Blackburn had an estimated 33 titles to his credit. His "History of the Christian Church" had received world-wide acclaim, placing him, according to a foremost reviewer, as one of the two leading church historians of his time.⁶

To this man belonged the next 13 years of the college's history—a period of richness on the academic side and slow starvation on the financial side. To Dr. Blackburn belonged the last battlefield of Pierre University. What he gave on that battlefield can never be erased.

In the fall of 1885, Blackburn, together with the synod, fired the opening shot. In a circular, they cited the fact that "the Synod, having pledged to endow Pierre University with $50,000, the interest of which at eight per cent, annually would be $4,000, 'Resolved that a prompt and vigorous effort be made in the churches to raise, at least, one fourth of the interest ($1,000) for the year ending August 1, 1886.'"¹

That year, Pierre U. had seven instructors. Tuition was still $36 a year, with other costs remaining at the level of 1884-1885. In the spring of 1886, the faculty had increased to eight.

The dream of the future would not be still. McCormick Hall was dedicated. Property of the college was estimated at $40,000. The city of Pierre and Pierre U. still looked forward to a metropolis in the center of a state "twice the size of Ohio."⁸ Stages fanned out from Pierre, end of the railroad, to the vast ranchland of the west river, to the army forts, and to the Black Hills. River traffic was heavy.

In the year 1885 the first college YMCA was organized.

At Pierre U., the publication of a college paper "The Collegian," was begun in March, 1886. A Mrs. Ford of Aberdeen secured 260 books and six maps, total value $330, for the college library. Donations for rooms coming from Iowa, Dakota, and Illinois totaled $702.52. In June, 1886, the college's first diploma (not a degree) went to Ada Baillie of Pierre. At the same time, the college library was designated as a depository for government publications and boasted a total of 900 volumes of all kinds.⁸

During the fall term, fifty students enrolled in all branches of the University. In January, 1887, there were seventy.⁸

On a Tuesday evening, May 31, 1887, the college that was then called Pierre University sent forth its first graduate and conferred its first degree—a bachelor of arts to Frank A. Farrar. Not only was Farrar the first to receive a degree from Pierre, but was the first in Dakota Territory, preceding by one week, a graduate of Yankton College.⁹

In his valedictory address, Farrar looked into the future of his alma mater, saying “—as the years roll by and the possibilities increase, the power of this University for good will be recognized more and more, so that in future time, when this country shall teem with population, the wisdom of planting a college on what is now the verge of civilization will be seen. And, as each succeeding commencement sends forth other graduates, may we always be proud of our alma mater and fondly cherish her memories.”⁹

Tying itself even closer to the geographical area in which it was located, Pierre University in the fall of 1887 was accredited by the Board of Education of the Territory of Dakota as a teacher-training institution. At that time, tuition of one dollar a week for the prospective teacher was paid by the territory.¹⁰

During the summer of 1887 another decision of vital importance to Pierre U. was made. The Synod took a definite stand that “Groton Collegiate Institute, supported by the Presbytery of Aberdeen, should not offer college work in competition with Pierre, and that Pierre was to be the only four-year college of the Synod.” At the same meeting, the Synod finally located its academy at Scotland.¹⁰

In October, 1887, a college YWCA was organized. By the spring of 1888, the college catalog was combined with the Pierre Collegian.¹⁰

July of 1888 marked a milestone. For the first time, college expenditures and receipts balanced out. Much credit went to the Synod and its churches, which raised $666 for the college.¹¹

Two more young men walked center stage at commencement exercises June 6, 1888, to receive degrees, becoming the second and third to graduate from Pierre U. They were W. W. Warne and George Safford.¹¹

With three graduates now in the field, an Alumni Association of Pierre University was promptly and enthusiastically formed on the day following the graduation of Safford and Warne, June 7, 1888. First president of the organization was Frank Farrar.¹²

Full membership in the association was granted to Farrar, Safford, Warne, Joseph Zoll, Edwin Jaynes, Charles Sharp, Charles Blackburn, George Gilchrist, and W. H. Chatworthy.¹²

By the fall of 1888, President Blackburn's struggles with the finances of the college seemed to be moving towards success. A debt of $3,422.16 which had existed in 1887 was now reduced to $1350.37, and the yearly expense of the college—$2900—met in full.¹³

There was however, need for additions to the $40,000 plant. Reporting to the Synod, Dr. Blackburn pointed out that, “every room in Pioneer Hall is now engaged, including the parlor, and it may be necessary to fit up the laundry room to accommodate other young ladies expected.” Such being the case, the Synod favored a grant of $5,000 to aid in the erection of a main dormitory, of which Pioneer Hall would be one wing.¹³

Dr. Blackburn, in an article for the “Dakota Educator” in 1888, set the tone for Pierre U.—a philosophy that carried on through the years of that college and its offspring, Huron College: "Let him (the student) remember that the smaller the class, the more attention he may receive. His individuality has the freer play. He has more opportunity for self-development . . . He advances by his own researches . . ."13

This simply stated Blackburnian philosophy has guided the college to the present day and has its valedictory proved in a recent motto of the college: "Quality education in a friendly atmosphere."

Dr. Blackburn himself was a student to the end of his life. During those years at Pierre "He had a very tough, dun-colored pony, which he named Sardinius (which the students called 'Charlie'), and a cart. He always carried a hammer in that cart. Every hill, ravine and stretch of prairie for miles around Pierre were familiar to pony and driver. With the hammer he secured and brought home specimens for his geological collection . . . He explored the Ree Hills in Hand County and the Badlands in Stanley . . . and brought back chalk and fossils some of which aroused the interest of such men as Cope."¹

Dr. Blackburn was also a poet, and examples of his work can be found in various publications, including the "Pierre Collegian."¹⁴

Through the college's history, probably no department of the school has received such wide national recognition as the speech division. In 1889 in Pierre, beginnings were already being made here, with the announcement that a "Debating Club" had been organized.¹⁴

Now came statehood for "South" Dakota. Where it had been written: "Pierre University, East Pierre, Dakota," it now became: "Pierre University, East Pierre, South Dakota."¹⁵

In these times, seeking to broaden the scope of the college, the board of trustees initiated the practice of giving free tuition to one graduate of any accredited high school.¹⁵ This practice was carried on in the college for several years, even after its move to Huron.

The city of Pierre, too, was progressing. As settlement extended westward to the Black Hills, Pierre U. took proud note of "sidewalks all the way from the college to town, and electric lights illuminating the wide valley."¹⁵

To the stoney hill above Pierre, in that year of 1889, came a lady who was to have a strong influence on many students at Pierre U. and later at Huron College. She was Miss L. J. Robinson, who came to Pierre qualified to teach mathematics, science, Latin, literature, and history.¹⁵

As the college began its seventh year during the fall of 1889, it was able to report a freedom from debt, but was now facing a need for more dormitory space for an increasing enrollment. The city of Pierre itself could help only in a small way, for, newly designated as the temporary capital of South Dakota and with a population rapidly doubling, funds were needed for civic enterprises.

Yet, even in this year of growth, the winds that would wither these new seedlings, Pierre and Pierre University, had been born and came drifting across the plains. A prairie fire in April and a summer drought had struck the farms.¹⁶ Drought—in the next few years the word was to become the name and shape of a destroying evil.

Pierre saw itself as the gateway to that vast territory west of the Missouri. From Pierre, the end of the railroad, went wagon trains. Through Pierre passed the river traffic. Yet, in those months as Pierre fought for the state capital, on drawing-boards and on the western earth new railroads were creeping in to tap the west river country.

By 1890, the college could boast that it was teaching "23 subjects—classes meet 85 times a week."¹⁷ Yet, in the spring of 1890, there were only three graduating seniors,¹⁸ and between 1890 and 1898 only eight more received degrees.¹⁹

The growth of Pierre and the country around it stopped. The boom was over. The railroad station in East Pierre was abandoned. A railroad extended from Chadron, Nebr., to Deadwood. That ended the transportation by oxen and mules from Pierre to the Hills. Fort Sully was abandoned. The up-river trade was cut off when the North Western railroad extended its line from Redfield to Gettysburg and the Milwaukee built from Aberdeen to Bowdle.¹

Drouth followed drouth, year after year. Settlers left their homesteads and the new country by the thousands. Pierre had reached the climax of its growth and now went backwards.¹

In this atmosphere, a college which was still in the dependent stages of its infancy could not hope to survive. Those who had struggled valiantly for its life at last found the insurmountable obstacle. From the hill in East Pierre eyes could look out to a land whose real future was still more than half a century away.

Dr. Blackburn had shown his ability as a fighter and as a college president, but even he now faced the impossible. He was an old man, a man who had given thirteen years of his life to the college, and linked with the tragedy of the college was personal hardship.¹

He had come to Pierre with his wife, two daughters and a son. Another daughter was already away from home, married to a minister in Canada.¹

While in Pierre, the son, Charles, went to Persia as a missionary. A daughter married a Dr. Robinson of Pierre. During this period of hardship, Mrs. Blackburn died. His daughter, Mrs. Robinson, died. The doctor grew old and broken in health.¹

The financial support on which the college was dependent fell below the starvation point. Dr. Blackburn and the Synod were forced to face the inevitable. Pierre University must close.

So, to the stage in 1897 came the last persons to graduate from Pierre—Elias Sarkeys and Thomas Schreiber. As the college—now Huron College—marks its 75th year, Schreiber is the only survivor of the 13 to receive bachelor degrees from Pierre University.¹⁹

Before the winds of drouth and depression the plant withered—but it did not die. The roots survived. The roots were taken from the soil of East Pierre and moved eastward some 100 miles, where the plant would bud again and grow.

What they had given then—the Findleys, Blackburns, Carsons, Farrars, Petersons. Wilbers, Crawfords, Fishbacks, Williamsons, McLeons, Pomeroyes, Ewarts, Churches, Blisses. McAfees. Robinsons—and all the unnamed ones—was not given in vain. Without Pierre U., what followed could not have been. Huron College is a monument to their 15 years of labor and devotion.

. . . 3 . . .

The Royal and Rebirth—1898-1906

On June 2-3, 1898, the Synod of South Dakota met in Huron and decided to move the college from Pierre to Huron, at the same time consolidating the college with Scotland academy.¹

The "$40,000 campus" in Pierre was sold for $1,000, and the amount applied to the balance of $1,600 due to Dr. Blackburn in unpaid salary.²⁰ (Later, the Pierre public schools purchased some of the land.)

These were hard times in Huron as well as Pierre, but economic facts did not dampen the spirit of John L. Pyle, a man who had faith in both Christian education and in the state of South Dakota. Under his leadership, $5,000 was raised by citizens of Huron to purchase the Royal Hotel (then known as the Huron Hotel). The building was offered to the Synod as a site for the college.¹

The Royal had been built in those days when Huron seemed a likely site for the state capital. According to some reports, original cost of the building had been $50,000.

With the acceptance of the hotel offering, the Synod cast about for a name for the new college. Several names were offered. Finally Dr. Blackburn rose and said: "You may attempt to call it by any other name, but it will always be known as Huron College." So it was christened.¹

The college had a home and a name. Next came a decision as to a leader for the institution, a president to develop and shape the future of the reborn college.

As the Synod met to consider this matter, Dr. Ray, secretary of the college board, pointed across the church meeting room to Rev. C. H. French, pastor of the church at Scotland and a faculty member at Scotland Academy. "There," he said, "is your future president."¹

And so it was. French was named president. Dr. Blackburn was, at the same time, named president emeritus and professor of normal science, economics, and geology.

To the faculty also came Elizabeth Robinson from Pierre University and Mary Tawney of Scotland Academy, both with records of service at the institutions now combined into Huron College.¹

A building—a president—the beginnings of a faculty. But these alone could not make a college. The building must be furnished.

In every time of need of the college, there had always been willing hands. Now, in Huron, a city then of 3,000 souls, this would not change. The women of Huron took steps to furnish that part of the building which would serve as dormitory space. They were soon joined by women of the Synod, individuals, churches and people from other towns in furnishing rooms. One of the most active groups was the group of Indian women of the Dakota Presbytery.¹

Eventually the groups banded together as the "Ladies College Association." Most memorable of their projects was a college County Fair, held in September of 1900.¹ Exhibits from Huron and the surrounding area, after competing for awards were auctioned off and proceeds turned over to the college. The amount of income was $460.²¹

The women's association had intended using the money for furnishing projects. Unfortunately, a sudden, violent windstorm of the type for which Dakota is noted removed the tin roof from the hotel building. The money was turned over to the trustees for a new roof.¹

The withered plant from Pierre put its live roots down in new soil. Huron College was born from the life-power of Pierre University and Scotland Academy. On September 20, 1898, the college opened for business.²²

As it had been in Pierre in 1883, four students registered for college work at the new institution. However, the total enrollment was much higher than four—academy, normal, music and other students brought the number registered in that first fall term to 61.²³

The "original four" registered in the college in the fall of 1898 were Walter Hubbard, Lewellen Lyman, Ranny Lyman, and Mary Trumbower.²⁴

In that fall of the beginning again, faculty members of the college were the previously mentioned French, Blackburn, Robinson, and Tawney, plus Richard VanderLas, and Mary Taggart. Edwin Dukes was principal of the normal department.²² Others joining the faculty during the year were G. M. Lynch in commercial, and Martin Schoenert in music. On the original board of trustees were A. T. Wolff, B. F. Trumbower, Coe I. Crawford, W. S. Peterson, J. D. Williamson, W. M. Blackburn, H. P. Carson, Jacob Butt, F. H. Kent, John L. Pyle, and D. W. Robinson.²²

Tuition at the new college was $10 per term (quarter system). Room rent for the women's dormitory, located on the third floor of the college-hotel building, was $2 per term plus a charge of $4 for steam heat in the fall or spring terms and $8 during the winter term. Board in the college club was estimated at $2 a week.²²

In the prospectus of the first catalog, the college proposed to grant five degrees—Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Literature, Master of Arts, and Master of Science. Departments of the school outside the college course were the academy, normal, music, and commercial.²²

During the fall of 1898, a college YMCA was formed.²⁴

Among the requirements for the collegiate degree were two years of Greek or German, one year of Latin, two years of mathematics, two years plus in philosophy and religion, English, chemistry, astronomy, psychology, history, physics, economics, geology, and sociology. Electives could be chosen from Hebrew, Sanscrit, French, Anglo-Saxon, Roman law, biology, and political science.²²

By the time of registration for the second term of the first year, Jan. 3, 1899, the list of students had grown to 118.²⁵

These encouraging signs of progress must have been tempered with sadness, however, for during the Christmas holidays preceding second term registration, Dr. Blackburn died. The college lost both a teacher and the man who had fought so valiantly as president through the long years at Pierre.²⁵

Death came suddenly to the distinguished educator as he sat in his study at his home in Pierre, preparing a sermon. He was buried in the city overlooking the Missouri where he had given so much to his dream of a "western university."

It did not take the young college long to make its mark in the circles of higher education. One of the "original four," Walter Hubbard, delivering an oration on Wendell Phillips, won first in the local contest, then went on to place in the state contest in Mitchell, making him eligible for the interstate competition in Wahpeton, N. D.²⁵

With Hubbard away at Wahpeton, the college and the city waited tensely for the decision. On June 2, 1899, it came in the form of a one-line telegram: "Huron College won first place in interstate. Mitchell second. Walter Hubbard."²⁵

The college and the city burst loose with a great celebration. Upon Hubbard's return, college colors were hoisted in the streets. A large crowd, meeting him at the train, carried him to "a hack and, together with Rev. VanderLas, he was drawn by about twenty students through the principle streets and then to his home.

"The young lady students carried a handsomely decorated banner . . . the drum corp headed the procession, while some other students pulled a two-wheel cart with a large milk can bearing the inscription, "Mitchell wins the cup."

That evening, another parade honoring Hubbard was staged through town and a special program held in the college chapel.²⁶

Perhaps a bit anticlimatic to Hubbard's victory was the closing of the first year's work at Huron College on June 11-14, 1899. The infant college marked the end of its first year of operation with baccalaureate on June 11, a recital on June 13, and graduation exercises on June 14.²⁵

President French delivered the baccalaureate sermon at the Methodist Church. Later the same day, Rev. A. Z. McGogney spoke to the YMCA.²⁵

At 8 p.m. on June 13 the Huron College music department staged its first recital in the "opera house." Professor Schoenert presided. On the program were Mesdames Dunning, and Fullinweider, Misses Spaulding, Faber, Bliss, Schuyler, Boyle, Lynch, May Markey, Miriam Crawford, Schoenert, Sterling, Miller, Booth, Rev. C. A. Brand, and Ralph Longstaff.²⁵

On the following day, John L. Pyle of the trustees awarded the first diplomas from the college to nine normal department students, two commercial graduates, and four who had completed the shorthand course. Those receiving diplomas were the Misses A. Andrews, C. Cort, M. Parkhurst, B. Spaulding, M. Smith, N. Bliss, B. Cort, E. Hill, B. Mouser, M. Whorton, G. Bushfield, L. Smith, Matthew Harris, Raymond Cooper, and Frank Tobin. There were, of course, no earned degrees granted, although a Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon Rev. McGogney, LeMars, Ia., and a Master of Arts upon Mr. Rason of Woonsocket.²⁵

Summer and fall, 1899—the drive towards permanency for the college was beginning. The number of student applications increased to such an extent that, although a men's dormitory had been arranged in the building, several students had to be turned away for lack of space. President French, who "laid the foundation and built the walls" of Huron College, was already negotiating, in 1899, for a tract of land for a permanent campus.²⁵

Opening on Sept. 19, 1899 for its second year, the college had a total enrollment of 152. The number of those engaged in college level work increased from four to eight, with Charles Schreiber, O. E. Tell, Bessie Mouser, Charles Wilcox, and Francis Barber added to three that remained of the "original four."²⁷ (Hubbard had transferred to the University of Minnesota. After graduation he returned, in 1903, as field secretary of the college.)

Several organizations were born during the school year of 1899-1900—some to live and some to fade out. Among the new groups was a YWCA, Periclean and the Blackburnian Societies—the last named in honor of Dr. Blackburn, who had died during the previous year.²⁷

The Periclean and Blackburnian group joined in the launching of a new venture during the spring of 1900—the publication of "Purple and Gold," college newspaper. Edwin Dukes was the publication's first editor.²⁸

The effect of Walter Hubbard's previous-year victory in regional oratory was felt in the school year of 1899-1900. Speech was introduced in the curriculum.²⁷ The number of entries in oratorical contests boomed. Thus was born a program which was to gain Huron College national notice, even into the contemporary times. It is probable that no other program at the college has enjoyed such success as that of speech. Important experts recently classed Huron College among the top colleges in its production of leaders in the field of speech.

Athletic activity for the new college came first in the line of baseball. Reported was a game with Redfield. In the lineup for Huron was Worral, Harris, Hill, Costain, LaPointe, Barber, Gamble, Whorton, and Von Vorhis. The "twirling" of Costain on the pitcher's mound came in for special commendation.²⁵

The ambition of the young college was pointed up by the announcement, in the 1899-1900 catalog, that a Ph.D. degree could be earned at the institution. There is no record of such a degree ever being granted by the college, although Pierre U. had granted two honorary Ph.D.s—in 1896 and 1897.

In the oratorical contest of 1900, won by O. E. Tell, the F. H. Kent prize in oratory was awarded for the first time.²⁵

The college YMCA during 1899-1900 began the sponsorship of a lecture course, which promptly ran into a $12 deficit. YMCA members made up the debt "from their own pockets," and also dug down for $70 to send Charles Miller, Edward Van Ruschen, and Caroline Cort as the first delegates to the Lake Geneva summer conference.²⁵

Commencement 1900 came, and there were still no college degrees, although 15 received diplomas in other departments.²⁵

By that spring of 1900, the college's effort toward a permanent campus was gaining ground. The Northwestern Town Lots Company (Chicago and North Western Railroad) had set aside four lots which would be given the college if the college could "show reasonable effort toward building upon it."²⁵

Accepting the challenge, the college immediately announced a campaign for $150,000 permanent endowment.²⁵

The finances of 1900, according to present definitions, were reasonably simple. Income had been $4,389.14, including $2012.85 from tuition and $2165.09 in gifts. Expenditures were $4,313.20. Of this, $2,120.99 was paid out in salaries.²⁵

On June 13, 1900, Wooster College conferred upon President French the degree of Doctor of Divinity.²⁵

It was in this year that Elizabeth Reid joined the faculty and began a lifetime of service to Huron College. Later in the same year Harry Gage, who has also been associated with the college throughout its Huron history, joined the faculty.²⁹

With a splash of publicity in the form of handbills, newspaper notices, programs, and public readings, Huron College announced, in the fall of 1900, the opening of its department of oratory under the direction of Professor E. R. Moses (who later went on to head a noted school of speech in Pittsburgh, Pa.) Shortly thereafter a dramatics club was formed. Several one-act dramas were presented. In the spring of 1901 the full-length play "Niobe" was produced, with a performance staged in the Mitchell Corn Palace as a feature of the annual intercollegiate athletic and oratorical contest.²⁵

One hundred sixty-nine students enrolled in 1900-1901. Of this number, 10 were in college work. Sixty per cent of the group came from Huron and 80 per cent from a 90-mile radius.³⁰

Organizations sprang up like early flowers during this year. The Student Association was formed and took over publication of the "Purple and Gold" from the Periclean-Blackburnian groups. A "Republican" club was born. A college orchestra was formed, the first members of which were W. Miller, F. Camp, G. Sheldon, F. Barber, and N. Milne. The YWCA extended its money-making efforts with an announcement that it would "repair and clean clothes at a very low cost."³²

At about this time, publication of the Huron College Bulletin, first called the Huron College Circular, began.

Just after New Year's, 1901, churches of Huron closed because of an outbreak of diphtheria.³² The siege seemed to have little effect on college work.

Declamation winners for 1901 were George Costain and Samuel Van Voorhis.³² And in this age of stage efforts, the age of canned entertainment had already begun, as the "Purple and Gold" noted that "Professor Lynch entertained the group for a half hour with his phonograph, which rendered some pleasing selections."³²

Professor Gage also showed himself to be ahead of the times. In a school election, he allowed the girls to vote, for which he was publicly thanked by the young ladies via the columns of the "Purple and Gold."³²

The college made a decision: No more honorary degrees until the college was adequately endowed. At the same time, the institution announced a goal of $500,000, of which $250,000 would go to buildings and $250,000 to endowment.²⁹

On a spring day in May (28th) students of the college gathered at the riverbanks and traveled upstream by the steamer "City of Huron," to Ward's Grove for a picnic.³² It is probable that, from this, grew the traditional "Paddle Day" of later years.

Purple ribbons were the order of the day in the spring of 1901 as Huron College opened its first summer school. The ribbons were worn by students who had come for the summer session and the Beadle County Teacher's Institute.²⁵ Sixty-seven registered for this summer session, the first college summer school term in South Dakota.

Over-all enrollment during the "Royal Hotel" days increased rapidly, but the growth of the four-year college division was slow. The four of 1898 became eight in 1899, 10 in 1900, 12 in 1901, 16 in 1902, 15 in 1903, 24 in 1904, and had risen to only 30 by 1905.³⁰ In the meantime, total enrollment, including academy, normal, other departments, and summer school, had boomed to 333.³⁰

For the second time in its yet short life, tragedy struck the college during the school year of 1901-1902. John L. Pyle, whose vision and purpose had been largely responsible for the college moving to Huron and who was president of the board of trustees, died at the early age of 42.²⁵ Thus the college had lost two of its great leaders—Blackburn and Pyle—in the space of four years. Fortunately for the institution, there were other strong men like President French to carry on the tasks still ahead.

One of the immediate tasks, as always, was finance. Writing in the columns of the "New York Observer," of May, 1902, President French pointed out that the college could not pay sufficient salaries, "The largest salary is $1,000, annually, the smallest, $270 . . . unless we obtain (finances) these small salaries must be further reduced."²⁵

"Give us $200,000 for buildings and endowment," French went on. "We are offered 16 acres of land for a permanent campus as soon as we can build on it, $100,000 will give us four good buildings. Another $100,000 for permanent investment would assure the future of the college."²⁵

At commencement on June 6, 1902, Huron College established a link with contemporary history when Rev. Allen Macy Dulles delivered a commencement address. Rev. Dulles, father of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Allen Dulles of Central Intelligence, had spent considerable time in Huron and Watertown, South Dakota. Upon his return to New York, Dulles gave a glowing report of the city of Huron and South Dakota in a talk to the people of his congregation. (For a complete report of speech, see Clipping Book No. 1.)

Huron College seems to have gained a special place in the hearts of many New York state people. Several thousand dollars for operating expenses were donated each year, and in 1902, the first scholarships offered by the college came from New York sources—the First Presbyterian Church in Rochester, King's Daughters of Seneca Falls, and a Colonel Griffith of Utica.

Among organizations formed in 1902 were the "Octopus" debating society, the college athletic association, and a "Chorus" Club.²⁵ Also begun in 1902 were night courses, the first being held by Professor Lynch.³³

During this period also, football was mentioned for the first time, reporting scores of 38-0, 17-6, and 5-24 against teams from "Brookings College," Mitchell Co. D, and Redfield College. The team was at first coached by Professors Moses and Gage, although a Mr. Gilke of Chicago soon took over the reins.³³ Early records in football do not give many details, but so far as can be determined, members of the first team were Dobson, Van Gorken, Lapoint, Parkhurst, Hill, Gamble, Nelson, Cardy, Coursey, Whorton, Costain, and coach Hopkins. The 1903 team members were Costain, McClaren, Whisman, Johnson, Fitch, Tredway, Squire, Hatch, Reid, Jones, Dobson, Pyle, Atherton, Cameron, Appel, Roberts and coach Chamberlain, according to Frank Roberts, who furnishes a picture of the team.

The year 1903 was a time of balance, a year when the college would put the chances of success or failure on the line. The four blocks of land for a permanent campus was a temptation and challenge which could not be denied. Those of vision looked upon the seedling that had grown and withered at Pierre, had begun to flourish now in Huron, and saw it spreading great branches in a new and permanent soil.

The time had come to try.

Programs came together. President French's visits in the East, his columns of publicity in papers and magazines, was one part. As another part, the Huron College Association was formed. The church and its people, the city of Huron, were other parts of the program.

"Our association has undertaken to build a girls' dormitory." With this the Huron College Association announced its determination. Among the leaders of the association were the Mesdames Harriet Von Arsdale, D. W. Smith, J. Coshun, John L. Pyle, Calvin French, T. M. Luckey, and R. L. Walker.²⁵

"The great storm of January 6, (1903)" reminded the college of possible failure. Shortly after $1500 had been expended in "fitting up" the fourth floor of the hotel building, the storm removed the roof and wrecked the rooms."²⁵

Success for the first enterprise came in the form of an assist from Ralph Voorhees of Clinton, N. J. On Dec. 22, 1903, he notified President French that he would give $15,000 towards the new dormitory on the present campus. The ladies of the college association, under the leadership of Mrs. John Pyle, were securing the remaining money needed.²⁵ The ladies association, as a part of its campaign, contacted women's societies in churches throughout the state, asking one lady from each society to carry forward the program. The requests met with varying degrees of success. Church donations ran all the way from $3.50 to $100. One lady, short on money, offered grocery due bills gained from the sale of farm produce. The leader of another church society was reluctant to help because a college professor visiting them had used tobacco. "When it is announced that Dr. French or Mr. Gage will speak at our church, we have an exceedingly small congregation—and you can guess why!" (money-asking, of course) commented another lady. Never-the-less, the church groups responded nobly, with the contributions of the Indian groups especially notable.³¹

Voorhees had first assisted the college in 1893 with the gift of a mortgage which two years later put the college in possession of 4,960 acres of Montana land.⁴²

During this same period, the drive towards endowment funds was successful to the extent of $30,000.³⁴

The first graduates of the college since its move from Pierre were granted degrees on June 11, 1903. There were two—Ranny Lyman and Charles E. Wilcox.²⁵ Lyman was of the "original four" who had registered in 1898. Wilcox first came in the following year.

With the opening of the 1903-1904 term, another faculty member who was to have a profound influence on the college and its people joined the staff. He was W. L. Notestein, a graduate of Wooster College.³⁵

Huron College students took politics seriously. If anyone doubted that, they need but look at the editorial columns of the Daily Huronite and the Huron Journal-World in March of 1904. Thirty-five Huron College students attending a speech by Col. J. H. King, opposing Coe I. Crawford for governor of South Dakota, expressed themselves rather vocally in favor of Crawford. This seemed to disconcert Col. King and the Huronite, who called the performance "disgraceful." Not so the Journal-World, who believed the students deserved commendation for their support of Crawford.³⁵

The spring of 1904 was also the time of the "great tennis marathon," which brought Huron its first medal in athletics. During one afternoon, Huron's John Wheeler played 116 games of tennis in winning over three opponents, the last the defending state champion from Mitchell. As if that wasn't enough, Wheeler had that morning participated in the high jump as another feature of the state meet in Huron.³⁶

In the meantime, the establishing of the new campus in southwest Huron was beginning. Work on the Elizabeth Voorhees dormitory had started. Stone from the farm of Ranney Lyman's father north of Huron was being placed in the foundation.³¹ A heating plant was planned for completion in 1905. An artesian well had been sunk near the center of the campus, exact location: in the angle formed by the south wing of Voorhes Hall and the chapel annex. The ladies association helped pay for the well by holding a cooking school under the direction of the noted Sarah Tyson Rorer. Although a total of $1,000 was realized, Sarah Rorer's fee was $500.³¹ By December 31, 1903, $100,000 had been subscribed to the development of the college. Roots were going deeper, reaching for permanency.³⁵

On October 8, 1904, the Voorhees dormitory was dedicated and was occupied.

If anyone doubted that Huron College was a frontier college, they should have been at the institution during those early years of the twentieth century. In that time, when it sent out a bill for tuition, the college could not always expect cash in return. Payment was often "in kind." As it is told: "The parents of one chap from the country had a particularly fine carrot crop the summer of 1905, but they were devoid of cash. Consequently, the chap paid his bill in kind—specifically, in carrots! That fall at the boarding club they had boiled carrots, fried carrots, creamed carrots, stewed carrots, braised carrots, etc., ad infinitum. All varieties were cheerfully endured until Thanksgiving time, when the cooks delivered the crowning insult and fatal blow by conjuring up and serving Carrot Pie!" (Letter, Hazel Tollefson Johnson, quoting from story of her father, Alfred Tollefson.)

The faith of Dr. French and his associates paid off again in October, 1905, when the college's chief benefactor, Ralph Voorhees of New Jersey, announced that he would give $100,000 towards the construction of a main building for the campus.⁴¹ With the dormitory already finished through funds from Voorhees and South Dakota givers, this latest gift insured a permanent rooting of the college moved from Pierre.

The trustees were offered $15,000⁴¹ for the hotel building, thus providing $115,000 for construction of the main building. The corner stone was laid on June 7, 1906, looking forward to a transfer of activities to the new campus in 1907.

Suddenly the total value of the college was $209,500 as compared to the $5,000 of the beginning only nine years previously.⁴¹

Spring 1905, brought the third and fourth degrees granted by Huron College. They went to Frank Junek and Bess Parks. In 1906, three more—Charles Hatch, Charles Miller, and Dora Parks—graduated.⁴⁴

With the arrival of the school term 1906-1907, the new building on campus was reaching upward but not done. The hotel had been sold, and the college was without classroom facilities. To solve this problem, "two large halls in a building known as the Echart building . . . directly across from the Presbyterian Church" were secured. Opening exercises of the year were held at the Presbyterian Church itself.⁴³

It was March, 1907, before classes were finally moved to Voorhees Hall.⁴⁵ On October 5, 1907, the building was formally dedicated.⁴⁶ Present for the dedication was one of the men who had been instrumental in founding Pierre U.—H. P. Carson. Thus was the third and last location of the college made. The plant brought withered from Pierre, showing signs of growth in the old Royal Hotel, now firmly and for all time put down its roots in new soil.

Faith and the Future—1907-1928

From his chair in a room of the "finest building next to the state capitol in the Dakotas," as described in S. D. newspapers of the time, President French could look out and see the product of ten years of labor. First, there were four square blocks of recently seeded campus. On the south side of the campus rose the $26,000 Voorhees dormitory, to the west, the $7,000 heating plant, and all around him the massive structure of the $120,000 Voorhees Hall. The college had arrived and was ready for its destiny.

In that first year on its new campus, college-level enrollment was 40, or ten times the number present for the opening at Pierre and in the Royal Hotel. Total enrollment, including academy and other branches, was 342. College faculty numbered 14. Sixty-six courses, leaning heavily toward the classical, were offered on the college level.⁴⁷

This was what faith had builded—the faith of French and his staff, the citizens of Huron, the church, South Dakota, and Voorhees.

But there could be no resting-on-laurels for French. The future was before his college, and the challenge was even greater than before.

Although the property value of the college had increased almost 50 times—from $5,000 in 1898 to about $250,000 in 1908—expenses had also risen from $7,700 to $35,800, and the position of the college financially was far from secure. Now as in all times, tuition and fees could never pay all the costs of educating each student. Endowment was the only answer.

From his office in Voorhees Hall, President French set his sight on the next great goal to be achieved—endowment.

Meanwhile, the new building was being put to use. A chemistry lab and physics lab were installed. The gymnasium in the space under the chapel was fitted. The library reported 6,000 volumes.⁴⁷

The ladies college association still contributed their bit. With funds realized from bake sales, dinners, renting dormitory rooms to Fair visitors, etc., they undertook to beautify the campus.³¹

At the suggestion of the Chicago and North Western Railroad, the college in 1907-1908 opened a school of telegraphy. One purpose, according to school advertising, was to fill vacancies created by a "law providing that railroad operators shall not be on duty more than nine hours a day." Promised as a result of this study was "a splendid salary of $50 per month." The railroad cooperated by extending a line to the college so students could hear actual messages.⁴⁶

Scholarship aid was beginning with the establishment of the Siliman, Ely, and McClymonds funds. Tuition rose for the first time in years, going to $40 per year.

As though the new campus was an inspiration, Huron College had one of its first successful athletic seasons in 1907. In that year they won from State College and Northern in football and placed third in the state athletic meet, topping all but State and USD.⁴⁸

In the next year, 1908, came even greater success in athletics. Under the tutelage of A. A. Chamberlain, an All-American from Wisconsin, Huron tied with Yankton for the intercollegiate title. In marking up the first state title for the new college, Huron won from Northern, Redfield College, and State, played scoreless ties with Mitchell and Yankton, lost to S. D. Tech 8-0, and to USD 10-0.

Players on the first championship team were Lenos Nelson, Barnum, Herbert Buckley, Guy Osbon, J. Salisbury, Jr., Small, Bert Kerr, Herman York, Blake, LeRoy Hollingsworth, Davis, Don Osborn, Daniel E. Hager, Tomlinson, Vernon Weir, and E. E. Melum.⁴⁹

The year 1909 saw the arrival of another staff member who would become a part of the life blood of Huron College. For most Huron College students she would need to be identified only as "Miss Mac"—but for others let her be named—Dr. Ella McIntire—librarian at Huron College for more than 40 years.

On Wednesday, October 27, 1909, appeared the last issue of "Purple and Gold," student newspaper magazine. It was replaced on November 9, 1909, by the "Alphomega," a name suggested by Dr. Notestein. Under terms of the Student Association constitution, the editor and business manager of the publication were to be paid $2.50 each per issue. Clough Hudson was editor of the publication at the time of transition.⁵⁰

Another new publication was born in 1909-1910. It was the school yearbook, "Rubaiyat." May Pyle was the first editor.⁵⁰

The same issue of the college newspaper that announced the creation of the "Rubaiyat," headlined the fact that President French was off on another of his eastern trips. However, this trip had special significance in the life of the college. It was the opening gun of a campaign to raise $500,000 in endowment—a campaign that would not end until just over two years later.

The college now had just over 40 enrolled in collegiate work. Its annual expenses were about $40,000, and its valuation almost $300,000. Of this last amount, only $19,000 was in permanent endowment funds.⁵⁰

Within six weeks, French had received a promise of $50,000 from railroader James J. Hill if the trustees would raise an additional $200,000. The campaign was under way.⁵⁰

"The officers of the organization are: Master Bulge Brow, Custodian of the official Craniometer, Guardian of the Sacred Razor, Comptroller of the Ancient Pouch, and Recorder of the Train of Procedure." Thus was the "Consolidated Fellowship of Brains" organization announced in March, 1910, and for a time kept things "stirring" at the college. Although no complete membership list ever was published, it was known that among the members were L. H. Smith, C. D. Hudson, A. F. Bliss, H. E. Andrews, J. B. Anderson, and H. H. Hudson.⁵⁰

The May Festival, still a tradition at Huron College, was first held in 1910, sponsored by the YWCA.⁵⁰

After a conference with the trustees, the ladies' college association disbanded.⁵¹

And now the endowment fund campaign moved to center stage in the college's story. After the $50,000 promised by James J. Hill, other gifts came slowly. Louis Severance of Ohio promised $40,000, Andrew

Carnegie $25,000, and the ever-faithful Elizabeth Voorhees, $30,000, to raise the out-of-state total to $151,000—but only $16,500 had come from South Dakota sources to make the final total $168,000—over $300,000 short of the goal.⁵¹

Time was growing short for the college to claim the pledges of Hill and others. A New York representative of the General Education Board put it up to Dr. French squarely: "Not enough South Dakota and Huron people are supporting the campaign. You can't succeed until they do."⁵¹

Dr. French answered by urging four Huron bankers—Abel, Campbell, Hutchinson, and Fullenweider, along with Mayor Koepp, to form a committee to canvass the town. The committee was formed. Rev. Kuhn of Madison began a canvass of the south eastern part of the state. French himself went to northern South Dakota. College faculty and students chipped in, raising $5,455 by February of 1911.⁵¹

At first it appeared that that would not be enough. In February, 1911, only about $4,000 was raised. The March 1, 1911 total of $172,000 was still a long way from the $500,000 needed by November of that year.⁵¹

March was a little better. The amount pledged by Huron people rose from $8,000 to $37,000. The faculty-student fund went to $8,600. The total was now $212,000.⁵¹

A boy who had lived in Huron and moved to Minneapolis, reading that the college needed money, sent along 50 cents in postage stamps.⁵¹

Spring and May brought a great surge in the drive towards endowment. The General Education Board on May 26 pledged $100,000. Another gift of $25,000 came. Suddenly the total was $370,500—only $130,000 to go!⁵²

Outside of Huron, several South Dakota communities were working hard towards the endowment fund. Aberdeen led with over $5,000. Others over the $1,000 mark included Groton, Hurley, Alexandria, Wessington, Madison, and Scotland.⁵²

Then the "summer doldrums" set in. Between June 1 and October 1 only a little over $2,000 came in. With only a month to go, over $100,000 had to be secured to insure the early pledges!⁵²

The time narrowed to two weeks, and $100,000 was still needed. One week, and the amount was $74,000.⁵² A call went out to Mrs. John Pyle, in Chicago. She contacted the McCormicks (Pierre U. Benefactors) and secured a large gift.³¹

Came a telegram from President French in the East! "New pledges of $15,000 here on condition Huron guarantees the last $10,000."⁵²

The college went into the final day of the $500,000 endowment campaign almost $30,000 short of the goal. Unless that amount was raised, any or all of the previous conditional gifts might be lost. There were sleepless and thoughtful people, students and faculty held sessions of prayer for the success of the enterprise.

In a South Dakota blizzard, solicitors plowed through the streets of the town ringing bells. E. F. Abel and J. I. Pasek kept two telephones busy at the drive headquarters. Finally a telegram came from Dr. French: "—We Win."^{52 54}

In the last hours, three friends who had given much previously promised "any necessary part" of $30,000 to insure the completion of the endowment. Huron College and President French had indeed won.⁵²

The final totals on the campaign showed that some $50,000 had been pledged in Huron, $4,300 by the college staff, $6,800 by students ($1,600 by Student Albert Sheldon), $37,600 in the state topped by Aberdeen's $5,200, and the remainder outside of South Dakota.

During the endowment campaign, the college had been changing in other ways. A printing plant was installed. The Montana ranch of several thousand acres was sold, but was still under mortgage to the college. The College Bulletin began appearing on a regular bi-monthly basis. Tuition went up to $50 per year. President of the United States Taft spoke at the college on October 23, 1911.^{51 52}

A sharp increase in enrollment was recorded at the college level in 1910-1911. Sixty-eight were on the rolls, and a freshman class of 37 broke all previous records.^{51 52}

During this time membership in the "Montana Bible Class" was 100 (the "Montana" designation came from the street in Huron where the originators of the group resided).⁵²

In 1910 the college organized its first "glee clubs" under the direction of Professor Hedge, making a first tour in February, 1911.⁵³

At a meeting in January, 1911, an athletic conference uniting Hamline, Huron College, St. Thomas, Macalester, Fargo, North Dakota U., North Dakota State, Wesleyan, Yankton, South Dakota U., and Northern was proposed at a meeting in Minneapolis.⁵³

The conference held a track and field meet at Huron on May 23-24. USD took first place, Hamline second, and Carlton third. Huron College took sixth place.⁵⁵

Also in January, 1911, a dramatic club was organized. Nellie Pyle was first president, and the first presentation, "David Garrik."⁵³

Noted in the fall of 1911, was a "certain professionalism" in South Dakota college football, when several colleges held pre-school-term training camps.⁵⁴

A basketball squad that compiled the "phenominal total of 46 points in one game," won the first state championship for Huron College in 1911-1912. The squad won from Redfield College, North Dakota State, (11-9), South Dakota State, Western Union, Sioux Falls Northern (twice), and South Dakota U. in taking the championship. Defeats came at the hands of Redfield College, S. D. U., and Morning-side. Members of the team were Thad Oviatt, John Schoof, Harry Lloyd, Clarence E. Sherwood, Glenn Martin, and Wickel Wick. H. M. Baker was coach.

In the year 1912, Huron College was well on the way to becoming the basketball capital of the state. In addition to the championship, the college—under the direction of Prof. C. W. Hochstetter—held the first state high school tournament with the blessing of the state high school athletic association. High schools entered were Miller, Madison, Redfield, Arlington, Lake Preston, Pierre, Salem and Center-ville. Redfield won.⁵⁴ Huron College continued to sponsor the state high school tournament until 1920, when the state association took over.

On April 16, 1912, Huron College held its first annual "Hobo

Day"⁵⁴—a tradition later taken over by South Dakota State College.

In the fall of 1912, Harry Gage returned as Dean of the College.

The fall of 1912 also brought Huron College its second football championship as the Purple and Gold won six, losing only to State. Feature of the season was a 43-yard field goal by Huron's "Bid" Roberts to edge Mines, 10-7.⁵⁵

On June 3, 1913, Dr. French tendered his resignation as president of the College. The man who had, in fifteen years, built the college from a $5,000 property with four college students to a firmly planted institution valued at over $700,000 with almost 100 college students, was moving on to another challenging position with the National College Board. Harry M. Gage, Dean of Huron College, was immediately named president to succeed French.⁵⁶

But no matter what French did at this time or in the future, a part of him would always be in Huron College. Probably no other man, although he had hundreds to help him, ever did more to make Huron College what it was and is. The minister from Scotland had taken the withered seedling from Pierre and made it an oak.

President Gage's first year progressed auspiciously. A new library was talked of. The football team lost only one game under the coaching of Roy Tredway. On Friday, April 24, 1914, the college held its first annual Paddle Day and Indian ceremony.

Given impetus by Huron's showing in football, efforts were made for securing a football field for the college, and land for the purpose was finally purchased.

The Athletic Club sponsored a yearly Minstrel Show to raise funds during this period.

The homecoming day tradition was begun in the fall of 1914 with a "Round-up Day."⁶¹

During the 1914-1915 term, two of the present college societies—Boethean and Eulalean (first a society for both men and women—split up in 1921) came into being.

Peace oratory contests had begun in South Dakota. In April, 1915, C. E. Reeves won the state competition in Peace oratory, and went on to a fourth place win in the interstate meet in Kansas.⁵⁸

On June 2, 1915, a fire damaged two rooms on the third floor of Voorhees hall.⁵⁸

Established in the year 1914-1915 was the Huron College Forensics Association. Speaker at the 1915 commencement was James A. McDonald, a leader in the Liberal Party of Canada. Added, also, during the 1914-1915 term was the college's second state championship in basketball, as Tredway's charges rolled up an 11-2 record.⁵⁹

The year 1914-1915 marked another, historic milestone. For the first time, college enrollment exceeded the 100 mark, with 110 registered, 52 of which were freshmen.⁶⁰

Huron gained accreditation by the North Central Association in 1915.

Debate and oratory still had great prominence at Huron College in 1915-1916. A league was formed with Yankton and Wesleyan for men debators; with USD and Morningside for women "arguers."⁶¹

At some time during these years began "Dandelion Day"—a campus cleanup outing.

One of the most unusual basketball trips ever made by Huron College came in February, 1916, when the squad played 5 games on one trip—downing Salem, Yankton College, USD, Sioux Falls College, and Madison (General Beadle) in that order. Another startling fact is the half time score of the Huron-USD game, which was: Huron 8, USD 11! The season ended with Huron capturing its second state title in a row.⁶¹

Striving to meet rising costs, the college in 1916 raised tuition to $60.⁶² The rise in costs seemed to have little effect on enrollment. An all-time high of 135 was recorded in college work, with 65 freshmen making another record.⁶³

Also in the field of finance, the college on August 31, 1916, made the final collection of the $500,000 endowment pledged in 1911.⁶³

Riding on the crest of a succession of outstanding years athletically, a group of alumni on December 26, 1916, organized the "H" Club. Leslie Meigs was named president, A. C. Schroeder, vice president, and G. O. Martin, secretary.⁶³

Initiated in 1916 was the annual YMCA "Watermelon Feed," although at that date, and for many years after, it was strictly a "stag" affair.⁶⁴

In March of 1917, Huron College met with representatives of Wesleyan, Yankton, and Sioux Falls Colleges to form the South Dakota Intercollegiate Conference, at the same time withdrawing from the Minnesota-Dakota Conference.⁶³

April, 1917—the first group of college men turned their faces to the war, joining a cavalry group formed in Huron. A month later, 1917 football schedules were held up, pending a decision to suspend athletics during the war.⁶³

In May, 1917, the S. D. College Press Association was organized, with Huron taking part. Francis Case of Wesleyan was named head of the group.⁶³

Under the press of war and a manpower shortage, the college schedule was rearranged in 1917-1918 so that the year would end early—May 4.⁶⁴

Huron College had been preoccupied with speech activity since the great victory of Walter Hubbard in the college's first year. In February, 1913, another step was taken with the establishing of a chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, national speech fraternity. First members were Prof. Everett L. Hunt, Albert McMillan, Mary Farrell, C. J. Boe, Jean Brady, Dephane Hammond, Emil Utterback, Marjorie Urquhart, Nancy Hannum, and Walter Voigt.⁶⁴

The 1917-1918 catalog of the college lists for the first time another faculty member who was to give years of faithful service to the college. This was Grace Finley, who taught piano in the music department.

While gaining new members of "the faithful," the college lost another. John P. W. Williamson, trustee both of Pierre and Huron Colleges, died in October, 1917. ..

And so came the autumn of 1918, and the twentieth anniversary of the college in Huron—the thirty-fifth since the founding in Pierre. The celebration planned by the alumni association had to be called off because of the war, but the college could pause a moment to look back and into the future.

How far had the college come in twenty years in Huron? It had come from the Royal Hotel, valued at $5,000 to a three-building campus valued at $260,000 including equipment. Endowment had risen from zero to $535,762.55. In addition, $9,000 of property, including the site of the president's house, was owned.⁶⁵

Student enrollment at the college level had come from 4 to 138, total enrollment in all departments from less than 100 to approximately 400. In 1918, 43% of these students were Presbyterian, 22% Methodist, 12% Baptist, and the remainder of other denominations. Ninety per cent of the college students came from within South Dakota, and about 45% from Huron itself.⁶⁵

There were 152 alumni of the college since 1883. Of the group, 30 were ministers or missionaries, 55 teachers, 10 in the other professions, 22 in government service, and 12 in business.⁶⁵

The library had grown from a few scattered volumes to over 10,000.⁶⁵

Operating expenses of the college had swelled in the twenty years from $7,700 to more than $71,000. The total of teachers salaries was now up to $30,000.⁶⁵

College courses offered had increased to 143.⁶⁶

And the future? In 1918, talk had already begun to be heard about a gymnasium—increased endowment—athletic field facilities—higher enrollment—the press of the future would move in these directions.

Headlines in the Alphomega at the opening of the 1918-1919 school year brought the war close to the campus. Huron College had been chosen as a site of the Student Army Training Corps.

As a result, women students were moved into homes in town and soldiers took over Voorhees dormitory.⁶⁷

Manpower drained by the war, Huron College's basketball team reached down into the academy for players in 1919 and came up with a star in James Sutton.⁶⁷

"Heinie Brown foiled attempts by girls to steal the bag by threatening to kiss them." Thus, in 1919, was note taken of the frosh-soph "bagrush", an annual event in the 'teens and twenties'.⁶⁷

During the years heading into the 20's, President Gage gave proof of his educational stature, being appointed to offices in such groups as the S. D. E. A., Presbyterian College Union, and North Central Association.⁶⁷

In April of 1919 the board of trustees and President Gage announced a campaign of $300,000, with at least $100,000 to be used for building.⁶⁷ The alumni association pledged $15,000 to the fund.⁶⁹

Autumn, 1919, brought another rise in tuition—this time to $80 a year.⁶⁸

Publication of a scholarly Alumni Quarterly began in 1919, continuing until 1924. Everett Hunt was editor.

"Influenza" was perhaps the most important single word on campus in the fall of 1919. The disease appeared soon after school opened and rapidly spread all across the campus. The third floor of the dormitory was converted to an infirmary, as was a cottage on the fair grounds. School for civilian students was closed in October and did not resume until late in November. There were no deaths.⁶⁹

The $300,000 campaign continued to gain impetus during that fall. It was decided to try for $100,000 of the amount in Huron, with that money to go towards a new gymnasium.⁶⁹

In 1920, for one year only, the name of the college yearbook was changed to "Wadahupacan." Also in 1920 appeared a brief history of Huron College from 1883 to that date.⁷⁰

Another part of the 1920 celebration was a historical pageant of the college, written by Percy Shostoc.⁷⁰

Herman Sweet was named president of the South Dakota Collegiate Press Association in 1920.⁷⁰

Albert McMillan, a graduate of 1917, in 1920 became the first Huron College man to win a Rhodes scholarship.⁷¹

In the fall of 1920, after serving Huron College as professor, dean, and president, Dr. Gage resigned to accept a position as president of Coe College of Iowa.⁷¹

The campaign for the new gymnasium, to cost $125,000, went slowly. In August, 1920, only $50,000 had been secured. As one purpose of the new gymnasium, the college cited the growing physical education program. In 1920, for the first time, physical education became a required subject for women students.⁷²

Other new courses added in 1920-1921 showed the trend away from the classical. Introduced in that year, besides physical education, were economics, forensics, and dramatics.⁷²

Gamma Theta Rho society was formed in 1921.

In 1921-1922, tuition rose again—this time to $100 per year. The rise seemed to have little effect on enrollment—registration in 1921-1922 went to an all-time high of 150 in college work.⁷³

Huron College had spent the year of 1920-1921 without a president. In the fall of 1921, a noted educator in Dr. George S. McCune took over the direction of the college.⁷⁴

McCune was especially noted for his work in Korea, where he had labored for 16 years, establishing and supervising a school system of 120 separate institutions.⁷⁴ Many of the students from these schools later attended Huron College and went back to important posts in Korea. As a gratified Korean (not a graduate of Huron) recently said: "Probably no man or no college has had so profound an affect on Korea's development as has Dr. McCune and Huron College."

When Dr. McCune left Korea, he was honored at a state banquet—the only foreigner ever so honored.

During the 1921-1922 season, a change took place in the "name" of Huron College's athletic teams. Previously called the "Purple and Gold," in January, 1922, the designation "Casaba" was used and reoccured until March, 1922, when the present nickname "Scalpers" is first used.⁷⁴ According to one recent account, an eastern South Dakota newspaper tacked the label of "Scalpers" on Huron after a particularly convincing route of Madison Normal.⁷⁵ That year the "Scalpers" again took the SDIC championship.⁷⁴

One of the stronger showings in track came for Huron College in May, 1922, when the Scalper squad finished second. Luther Noe and Herman Sweet were standouts in the meet. In that spring also the college held its first invitational track meet for high schools.⁷⁴ composed the song "Huron, Dear Old Huron." The composers were Winifred Brewer and Ethel Phillips.

To cheer the athletes forward, two members of the class of 1922

The years of faith and hard work of those people who were Huron College began to pay off enrollment-wise in the fall of 1922. For the first time, college enrollment went over the 200 mark, the freshmen class beyond 100, and total enrollment over 550.⁷⁶

Founder's Day was observed for the first time on September 26, 1922.

The campaign for endowment and building funds started in 1919 had sagged badly. In 1922, the effort was revived with the help of the General Board of Education, which promised $100,000 toward a fund of $500,000. The goal was to raise $125,000 in Huron, $125,000 in other parts of South Dakota, and $150,000 outside the state. Campaign headquarters were opened in March, 1923.⁷⁷

Students and faculty immediately pledged $18,000 to the fund. By March 28, an amount of $130,000 had been pledged in Huron and the new gymnasium was assured. The entire campaign of $500,000 was completed on November 30, 1923.⁷⁸

In January, 1923, was held an "Inspiration Week," an outgrowth of "Education Week," which seems to have been the foundation for the present "Religious Emphasis Week" held by the college.⁷⁷

Another headline event in January, 1923, was the installation of a "radio receiving set" in the college.⁷⁷ Reports have it that Lewis Terpening, now a noted radio-radar engineer, was instrumental in the installation.

Herbert Titt, a man who was to do much for Huron College, joined the staff in 1923 as head of the mathematics department. Another professor named in that year who was later to give extensive service as a trustee was Glenna McArthur.⁷⁶

"Homecoming Day" became "Round-up Day" and that, in turn, became "Pow Wow Day" in 1923. Thus did the present homecoming celebration of the college start.⁷⁸

In the first Pow Wow Day, October 19, 1923, the college president was "Big Chief," a position later relinquished to the student association president. A parade opened the initial event, followed by a barbecue, a football double-header (Huron College vs. Yankton College and Huron High vs. Mitchell High). A bonfire and the traditional Indian ceremony closed the day.⁷⁸

The first all-conference team of the SDIC on record in the Alpha-mega was announced in 1923 with five Huron College men listed—Edward Thompson, Ralph Bloemendaal, Elmer Stolte, Vincent Keeler, and John H. Hogan.⁷⁸

In February, 1924, Lester Thonssen won division honors in extemporaneous speaking. A squad of Edward Hoy, Choate Johns, Paul Vincent, Mack Easton, and Thonssen became a power in South Dakota collegiate circles. A frequent substitute was Fred Plachy. A speech trip was made into Iowa and Illinois.⁷⁸

At the second annual "Pow Wow" Day in 1924, George Bell became the first Chief Warrior, and Eva Rogers the first Princess chosen by the student body.⁷⁹

In 1924, after three years of trying, a dramatics club was organized and was named the "Campus Players."⁷⁹ Also organized was Pi

Alpha Phi.

The Men's Glee Club, on tour, broadcast from WLAG, Minneapolis.

A Women's Athletic Association was organized in 1924 by Prof. Helen Ballack. Esther Jacobson was president.⁷⁹

Lester Thonssen in February, 1925, won the state extemporaneous speaking contest. Catherine McCune won tri-state honors in the regional Pi Kappa Delta extemp speaking contest.⁷⁹

Four thousand people attended the opening of the gymnasium-auditorium in April, 1925, then one of the largest gymnasiums in the state. Final cost of the building was $145,000. One of the first entertainments was the appearance of Sousa's band.⁷⁹

"Mrs. English Department of Huron College," Miriam Crawford Speirs, joined the faculty in the fall of 1925.⁸⁰ A graduate of the college in 1910, Dr. Speirs was to be a strong influence on and friend to hundreds of students at Huron College up to the present time. In 1956 she was given one of the three original citations of the Alumni Association.⁸¹

Huron City affairs struck heavily at the college in November, 1925. Four city banks had failed within two years, and with the closing of the fourth in November, 1925, the college student association and other funds lost heavily, forcing the cancellation of several activities.⁸⁰

Enrollment crossed the 300 mark for the first time in 1925, with 302 signed up. A freshman record of 140 was also recorded. Tuition rose to $120.⁸⁰

Winter activity in these years included a "Colonial Party" at which students appeared in early American costumes.

A practice of some 20 years ended in 1926 as the college dropped Saturday classes and Monday holidays in favor of the current Monday through Friday schedule.

Two outstanding athletes, Lewis Warsing and Lynn Wiren, were awarded special monogram blankets for their unique record at the college.

Again in 1926, Catherine McCune took first honors in the state-wide extemp speaking contest. Lester Thonssen was second in oratory. At the national conclave of Pi Kappa Delta at Estes Park, Colo., Miss McCune advanced to the finals in extemp, placed fourth, and was one of two named to national office with Pi Kappa Delta.⁸⁰

The 1926 college annual was named by the national board of Beta Chi Alpha, yearbook fraternity, as the best in its class.⁸⁰

A combined college-city orchestra was formed in the fall of 1926 under the direction of Prof. Bailey.⁸¹

In January, 1927, Mary Davis, who had been the 1926 "Miss South Dakota" at Atlantic City, was named May Queen.⁸¹

Editorializing in January, 1927, the Alphomega made a plea for social dancing on campus at the college.⁸¹

Also in January, 1927, came the announcement from President McCune that he was resigning to return to Korea. During the tenure of McCune, which began in 1921, the new gymnasium had been built, the college endowment increased to over $800,000, and student enrollment increased almost three times.⁸¹

In a college music contest in March, 1927, Grace Williams was first place winner in piano for the state, went on to capture the regional honors of a four state area, and entered the national contest at Chicago.⁸¹

Northwestern University debators came to Huron College on March 23, 1927, and met a campus team in an argument over the prohibition issue. Huron was represented by Lois Buswell, Paul Burke, and Elinor Jones.⁸¹

Continuing its showing in affairs of speech, Huron College took a first and second place in Pi Kappa Delta provincial meetings in Iowa in 1927. Mack Easton won first in extemp and Elinor Jones second in oratory.⁸¹

On October 7, 1927, Royal C. Agne was elected as the sixth president of Huron College (including Pierre U.)⁸²

The student association budget in 1927-1928, was divided thus: Athletics, 51%; Forensics, 23%; Alphomega, 14%; Girls Athletics, 5%; Social, 3½%; and Contingent Fund, 3½%.⁸²

Thirty years in Huron, 45 years in the state of South Dakota—in 1928, the college finally completed collections in the $500,000 endowment campaign started in 1919 and reported a total endowment of $911,000—making Huron at that time the best-endowed college in the state and 18th in rank among the nation's Presbyterian colleges.⁸²

In February, 1928, came notice of the death of Thomas Findley, who had been the first president of Pierre University.⁸²

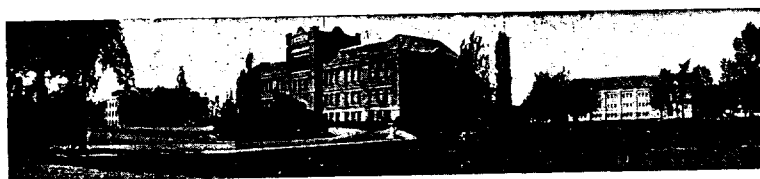

Lois Buswell continued Huron's prominence in national speech circles as she advanced to the finals of the extemp speaking contest at Tiffin, Ohio, in 1928. She was named one of the finalists from a field of 156 speakers.⁸²

Spread over the two-year period of 1927 and 1928, the college abolished the academy which had been a part of the institution since its founding in Huron (when Scotland Academy was combined with the college). Reasons given for the abandonment in 1927-1928 was the rapid growth of public high schools in the state.⁸²

Faith and the future—30 years in Huron, and 45 years in the state of South Dakota. The faith of French, of Gage, and of McCune had paid off. The college—and the nation—was drawing to the close of an era, and the future was ahead.

The future would be far from easy, for it held difficult times. South Dakota's best endowed college would soon see its endowment shrink, would experience extreme fluctuations in enrollment, and would know a threat to its very existence.

The future would require new vision and new strength.

THE CAMPUS — 1920'S

. . . 5 . . .

Dust and Delusion—1929-1945

The storm gathered but was not yet upon them. In the channels of business, events were building toward the crash of 1929. In the great shifting cycles of weather, drought and pestilence was evolving. But, on campus, change and tradition moved side by side into the future.

October, 1928: For the first time, the student association president became the Pow Wow Big Chief in place of the college president, with the elective honors of Princess and Chief Warrior remaining.⁸³

November, 1928: The college football squad won its first championship in 12 years, downing Columbus College 2-0 and compiling a 4-1-2 record.⁸³

February, 1929: The Alphomega was "the first college newspaper in the world" to appear on "cornstalk" paper.⁸³

March, 1929: The college curriculum underwent extensive revision, with courses added, dropped, and the number of hours for many subjects, especially in science and languages, reduced.⁸³

April, 1929: Lois Buswell took a first in extemp and a second in oratory at the Pi Kappa Delta Province meet held in Huron.⁸³

The national disaster of the 1929 crash caused never a ripple on the surface at Huron College. As the effects of the crash spread out across the country, Huron College president Agne and the Board of Trustees spoke of "five new buildings" to be dedicated on the 50th anniversary of the college in 1933.⁸⁴

And college life went on:

January, 1930: Hazel Tollefson won a trip to Washington as an outstanding 4-H Club member.⁸⁴

February, 1930: The first announcement of "night courses" was made.⁸⁴

March, 1930: Gladys Pyle, graduate of 1911, entered the race for governor of South Dakota. Miss Pyle had already served in the state legislature and as Secretary of State for South Dakota, the first woman ever to so serve.⁸⁴

May, 1930: Art Campbell broke the SDIC high jump mark in a meet at Sioux Falls, clearing six feet. The college had one of its most successful seasons in track, based on the outstanding work of Eddie Han, Wayne Nelson, Sam Namminga, George Fortune, Harold Duke-low, James Charr, Mitchell, Harold Lumb, and several others.⁸⁴

September, 1930: Huron lost to Northern at Northern in the first college football game to be played on a lighted field in South Dakota. At the same time the H. C. Alumni Association announced plans for lighting Huron's field.⁸⁵

September, 1930: Tuition rose again—to $150.

January, 1931: College dramatists presented "Punishment" in four languages. Director and author was Edwin Du Poncet, professor of languages.⁸⁵

April, 1931: Huron College was fully approved by A. A. U. W.⁸⁵

May, 1931: George Fortune set a new pole vault record of 11'5".⁸⁵

May, 1931: Norman Thomas spoke at the college chapel.⁸⁵

"As the culmination of a series of comparative crop failures, this year presents a sinister combination of drought, grasshoppers, and low markets. Consequently, Huron College, like the people of South Dakota, is compelled to rigid economy . . . Much cutting has reduced the budget to the condition of a shorn lamb. Yet even the strictest economy can not balance the smaller budget by some $30,000 . . ." ⁸⁶ Thus in 1931, did the wave of the depression and an obstinate nature wash against the shores of the campus. The "hard times" had come to what had, only months before, seemed a bright future.

Student enrollment had not suffered extensively as yet. Students found jobs and somehow managed to stay in college—perhaps because there was no regular work for them if they did not go to college.

Income from endowment suffered, and the suffering was to grow worse as less and less interest came from the mortgages in which the endowment funds were invested. Mortgages could be foreclosed, but there would not be much income from the over 100 pieces of land and 22,000 acres thus coming into college hands. In fact, as the depression deepened, income from the farms did not amount to enough to pay taxes on the land.⁸⁷ Gifts lessened in size and number. The college began a sort of "pay day to pay day" existence.

Faculty salaries were reduced, the entire budget of the college cut 30%, and yet it was not enough. Debt remained. Questions arose as to whether the college would open its doors for the second semester of 1932-1933, but it did, and somehow managed to continue.

In the midst of hardship, life goes on. College life is no exception. While the college administration struggled with falling income and "frozen" funds, Huron College's campus remained a center of boiling activity and changing patterns.

Change: In the fall of 1931, the student body for the first time was in complete charge of Pow Wow Day. During the same fall, college sanction was finally given to campus dances.⁸⁷

Activity: The Rubaiyat and Alphomega both won top awards (general or departmental) in the South Dakota Collegiate Press Association contest. The college orchestra appeared in public concert.⁸⁷

A First: Huron debaters overcame Augustana—the first time in eleven years that a South Dakota team had smitten the mighty Augies.⁸⁷

A First: In April, 1932, the college held the first "Mother's Day"—this time sponsored by the YMCA.⁸⁷

Activity: Huron won a triangular track meet with Wesleyan and Northern.⁸⁷

Signs of the Times: Room rent and boarding rates were slashed in autumn, 1932—rooms to $20 a semester and board to $16 a month.

Activity: The Huron College Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu was formed by Prof. Notestein and others.

Change: President Agne took a year's leave of absence—administration was left in the hands of a committee composed of Dean Hill, Prof. Titt, Miss McIntire, and a group of trustees.⁸⁸

End of an Era: On October 15, 1932, death came to Harlan Page Carson, one of the founders of Pierre University and a continual source of strength for Huron College through its "first-fifty" years. Carson was the last of the "pioneers" among the trustees who had served the cause of the college since the beginning in 1883. In the life of the college he would stand alongside Blackburn and French as one of those who "laid the foundation and threw up the walls."

Signs of the times: 1932—no college-sponsored Rubaiyat (according to subsequent announcements, the Rubaiyat became, at this point, a private venture for some hardy businessman-student. The yearbook continued to be published on such a plan for several years.) and no Wheeler cup for tennis due to the depression and lack of finance. In a poll of delegates to the South Dakota Press Association meeting, socialist Thomas for president—16, Hoover—6, Roosevelt—3. In a poll of Huron College student body. Hoover—95, Roosevelt—44, Thomas—21.⁸⁸

Change: The class of 1932 set aside the custom of class orators.

Honors: Harold Lumb became the first student to win a Rhodes Scholarship while enrolled at Huron. Previously, Albert McMillan, 1917, had won a Rhodes Scholarship after leaving the college.⁸⁹

Recognition: France announced acceptance of Huron College degrees.

Change: February, 1933. Huron College began a series of weekly radio broadcasts over local station KGDY.⁹⁰

College and City: April, 1933. Trustee F. D. Greene and Lowell Greene, '27, foiled a bank robbery at the Security National Bank by shooting it out with two bandits who soon fled.⁹¹

And so Huron College came to the end of its first half-century of existence following the founding in Pierre in 1883. The 50 years had seen the campus moved twice and the establishment of a permanent campus. However, as in 1883, the depression-ridden era of 1933 saw the college in a precarious position. The budget had been cut to the bone, and still there was difficulty meeting the payroll. Activities and trips were curtailed, and students scoured the city looking for part time jobs. This was the test of survival. Huron made it. Many colleges did not.

And the half-century record was good. Dr. Floyd Reeves, himself a noted alumnus, ranked Huron in the highest 10% of the nation's colleges on the basis of alumni achievement.

In its 50th year, the college had 219 students. Offered were 175 courses. Endowment was about $950,000 (less in actual value at this point, undoubtedly). Value of the campus (again, more than actual, perhaps) was about $600,000.⁹²

Opening its fiftieth term, the college had a faculty of 22.

The campus at the end of fifty years contained four buildings: Voorhees Dormitory, Voorhees Hall, heating plant, and the gymnasium. The academy had been discontinued. Outside the campus itself were the athletic field, now fenced, and the president's home.

This was the college twenty-five years ago.

Readjustment began in 1934. It was announced that about 10 per cent of Huron College's students would be eligible for funds from the federal government of from $10 to $20 per month. Still, the college would have to carry up to $20,000 a year in "student paper" to help young people through these lean years. The board of trustees examined the endowment funds and found that up to $100,000 of the endowment had not been designated as such by the donors. Moneys were thereupon withdrawn from the endowment to cover a carried-over debt of about $90,000.⁹⁰

Enrollment in 1933-1934 was 184, almost 140 less than the peak reached a few years earlier.⁹¹

At the beginning of the 1934-1935 school year, Dr. Frank Eversull was named president of the college.⁹²

The Huron College football squad of 1934, coached by Bud Parker, won the first championship rating that the college had had since 1928, and the last that would come the college's way for more than 20 years, although there were some excellent Scalper teams during that period of two decades. The 1934 Scalpers had to share their championship honors with Augustana and Black Hills Teachers, also undefeated in the conference.⁹² The unblemished record was the first for a Huron College team, and the last until 1957, when the Scalpers again were all-victorious.

Named all-conference on the 1934 champ squad were Ted Hohm, Bill Harbert, and Milo Youel.

Along with joy came sorrow. On November 21, 1934, came the news of the death of Dr. Calvin French, "the man who built Huron College."⁹²

"Storm-Bound Scalpers Spend Night In Jail!" And all this was for an exhibition game at Miller—promoted to raise a few shekels for the "H" Club. Not enough housing was available, so the team, caught in a March, 1933, blizzard, spent the night in the city jail.⁹² The same team, however, had its share of glory, as its 12-game-won season placed it third in the nation.

President Eversull returned from a trip to the East.⁹² By this time, it was becoming increasingly evident that the pattern of college support was changing. In the years ahead, college's could depend less and less on wealthy people on a national basis. Future financial support would come more and more from the college's own area and from its own people—alumni, ex-students, and church-connected persons. Huron College was in the opening phase of this great shift in 1935.

The molding of the college continued. In April, 1935, the first list of "Huronians" was named. Included in the list were LeRoy Nelson, Milo Youel, Velma Jonason, LaVerne Gibbs, LaFola Shouse, Dorothy Kyle, Helen Hackney, Marjorie Hill, Victor Anhorn, and Ben Young.⁹²

Herbert Titt, mathematics professor, was, in September, 1935, named acting dean of the college.⁹³

A regular schedule of night courses was inaugurated in January of 1936.⁹³

The 1936 Rubaiyat won first place in the state contest.⁹⁴

Donald McMurchie, who graduated from Huron College in 1919, was in 1936 named Lt. Governor of South Dakota.

During commencement exercises in 1936, Elizabeth Reid was given an honorary doctor's degree.

Huron debaters Don Schrader and George McCammon won their way into the finals of the 1937 Pi Kappa Delta Province Tourney.⁹⁴

In a tragedy widely publicized at the time (1937), an ex-student of Huron College was murdered by two hitchhikers. The ex-student was Ada Carey ('28-'29).⁹⁴

At the 1937 commencement, Neda Aisenbrey became one of the very few students, and probably the first, to earn the "summa cum laude" honor while at Huron College. She had maintained a straight "A" average through her entire college career.⁹⁴

Enrollment had begun to come back after the 184 low of 1933-1934 and by the fall of 1937 had again reached close to 300.⁹⁵

"Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities" had as its Huron College listing in 1938 Chester Topp, Charlotte Dugdale, Leslie Lewis, Ethel Parrett, Jeannette Jones, and Rollyn Moseson.⁹⁶ (This is the first reference your editor can find to "Who's Who" elections at the college, so presumes this is the first group.)

In May, 1938, Colin Parkes scored a chemical "first" as he was able to synthesize a compound previously considered impossible of synthesis.⁹⁶

A new sport, weightlifting, brought gold medals to Huron College athletes in 1938 as Eugene Pugsley, Floyd Ulrich, and Lowell Swenson took first place honors at the midwest AAU tourney in Omaha. Pugsley set two new records at the meet.⁹⁶

At the end of the 1937-1938 school year, Dr. Notestein, who had given 35 years of service to the college, was named Professor Emeritus. Thus closed the career of another man who had left indelible marks on the history of Huron College.⁹⁷

Announced in November, 1938, was the publication of a novel by language professor Edwin Du Poncet—title: "The Devil's Defeat."⁹⁷ A copy of the unusual book is on file in the college library.

"Heart Sister Week" was first noted as a college activity in February of 1939.⁹⁷

Huron College students took to the nation's airwaves in April of 1939, as a NYA group broadcast a play on the CBS network originating the program at WNAX. Students in the play were Rollyn Moseson, Helen Prickett, John Gaughn, Clarence Williams, and Verda Rauch.⁹⁷

With the 1939-1940 school year, again could be heard the threatening rumble of war. Many college men joined the national guard, which had its headquarters in the gymnasium. The "Swimming Pool" area (now the Wigwam) was used for a rifle range. The civilian pilot training program began at the college.⁹⁸

Dr. Milton Towner was named the eighth president of Huron College.⁹⁸ After a rather miserable season in football in 1939, the Scalpers rose up in the final game to gain some measure of satisfaction as they edged Northern 7-6, thereby knocking the Wolves out of a tie for the conference championship.⁹⁸

"There is still a rule forbidding smoking on the campus, but evidently it is no longer being enforced—." Thus did the Alphomega in 1940 take note of another changing pattern in campus life.⁹⁸

The Commercial School at Huron College at last disappeared as a separate unit in 1940 with the announcement that commercial courses would become a part of the business administration department, with all courses carrying degree credit.⁹⁸

The college observed its first Parent's Day in 1939.

Dr. Towner resigned as president of the college in May, 1940.⁹⁸

Judge Archibald Gardner, after 29 years as a member, resigned as chairman of the board of trustees.

Freshman student Garner Horton won first place in a national short story contest.⁹⁸

In the fall of 1940, the loved and admired dean of the college, Herbert Titt, died. Huron College lost another man who had given so much of his life to the institution's cause.⁹⁹

A directing committee, headed by Ella McIntire, took over administration of the college.⁹⁹

The 1941 edition of "Who's Who in Music" listed college professor Loftus Ward among its entries.⁹⁹

Under the direction of Professor George Henigan, the college in 1941 held its first invitational speech contest for high school students.⁹⁹

The rumblings of war grew stronger early in 1941. In February the national guard unit was mobilized and scheduled for shipment to Louisiana. Other college students were enlisting in the services.⁹⁹

On May 5, 1941, Dr. George F. McDougall was elected president of the college, a position he was to hold for twelve years.⁹⁹

Autumn, 1941: The threat of war grew more intense . . . the nation's concern turned to military matters . . . at Huron College the enrollment dropped to 145, lowest it had been since the early 1920's . . .

Miss Reid, whose influence had spread across the whole span of Huron College years since the Royal Hotel days, resigned and without fanfare moved to her home in California. Her quiet leave was typical of the woman, of her selflessness and her concept of service to the young . . .¹⁰⁰

Among the top freshmen to come to the college in 1941 was Edward Meyer, who the previous year had won a superior rating in a national music meet at St. Paul, Minn. . . .¹⁰⁰

In December, 1941, the college Alphomega printed a lengthy editorial on its policy of printing news . . . reason for the editorial was the appearance on the campus of an anonymous "yellow sheet" called "The Maggot," and professing to be the "only live matter in a dead body . . ."

Also in December, 1941, came news of the death of former president George McCune . . . and of William Notestein . . . both of whom had given much to Huron College and its destiny . . .¹⁰⁰

John I. Pasek, who had been office secretary, treasurer, and business manager at Huron College for almost 35 years, resigned in March of 1942.¹⁰⁰

In the summer of 1942, the college offered special short courses for persons going into defense industries . . . parts of the curriculum were also keyed to the Air Force reserve program . . .¹⁰⁰

Beginning the term of 1942-1943, effects of the war deepened. The sport of football was suspended. Enrollment dropped to 108, half of which were freshmen. First Aid classes were organized. Civilian Pilot Training courses flourished.¹⁰¹

Pow Wow Day in 1942 was shifted from its usual autumnal setting to December, when a basketball game was the feature sports attraction.¹⁰¹

As in World War I, a group of army men were sent to the campus in the winter of 1943 and were quartered in the Voorhees Dormitory.

A student lounge was opened in 1943 in some extra space in the print shop (the shop was sold out soon after). A service flag with 203 stars was hung at the chapel entrance. The first gold star of the flag was for Robert Adams.¹⁰¹

Spring, 1943, saw the athletic field plowed up for use in Victory gardens. Among the "new farmers" were several faculty members.¹⁰¹

War came to the women, too. Mary S. Bell, former student, teacher, and dean of women at Huron College became one of the first women selected to attend the Army Command and General Staff School—later she became one of the top women officers in the WAC.¹⁰¹ A unit of cadet nurses also trained on Huron's campus.¹⁰²

In the fall of 1943, Fred Plachy, a graduate of the college and former instructor-administrator in South American and U. S. schools, became dean of the college.¹⁰²

Enrollment dropped to the lowest point since the early 1900's, with only 74 full-time college students in 1943-1944.

The 1943 Pow Wow featured a football game between Huron High and Aberdeen High.¹⁰²

The March 4, 1944, issue of the "Saturday Evening Post" featured a picture of former college student Mary Laughlin, who had escaped from her missionary school in Rangoon ahead of the Japanese.¹⁰²

Spring, 1944: Death came to Coe I. Crawford, longtime trustee, booster of the college, former governor and senator, and father of college professor Miriam Speirs.¹⁰²

With the passage of the school year 1943-1944, the low point in enrollment was passed, and registration climbed again in 1944-1945 to 95.¹⁰³

Looking forward to the end of the war, the college began planning for its future. A Post-War Program Fund Campaign was begun under the chairmanship of W. H. T. Foster of Sioux Falls. Some $35,000 was secured during the fall of 1944, and $60,000 by February, 1945. Some of the improvements resulting from the drive were new sidewalks on campus and remodeling of building interiors.¹⁰⁴

Enrollment in the fall of 1945 went to 125, of which number 75 were freshmen.¹⁰⁵

During that fall the college purchased the equipment of the Northwest College of Commerce and enlarged the secretarial science department on campus.¹⁰⁵

Servicemen began to return to college in the winter of 1945-1946. Sixty-three new students came in at the beginning of the winter quarter.¹⁰⁵

A new athletic conference was formed during the winter of 1946. Known as the Dakota-Iowa conference, the athletic league included church-related colleges from South Dakota and Iowa. Included in membership, besides Huron College, were Sioux Falls, Yankton, Dakota Wesleyan, from South Dakota, and Western Union (Westmar) and Buena Vista from Iowa. The South Dakota church schools withdrew from their previous conference, the South Dakota Intercollegiate, in 1938. Augustana meantime, had joined the North Central.¹⁰⁵

In February, 1946, the first "Hayshaker's Hop" was held.¹⁰⁵

With the return of veterans, the government allotted 25 house trailers to the college to be used for veteran housing. The trailers were located on the southwest corner of the campus.¹⁰⁶

In the spring of 1946, Frank Smith, who later became dean of the college, joined the faculty as an instructor in business.¹⁰⁵

May 23, 1946: John I. Pasek, who had been business manager at the college until 1942 and farm administrator after that, died in a Huron hospital.¹⁰⁵ His death ended an association with Huron College which went back to the early 1900's.

An era was ending for the college, too. The era had begun in 1929 and carried the college through drought, depression, and the war. Materially, during this period, the college had stood still. There had been no new building; enrollment had ceased to grow, endowment funds had decreased.

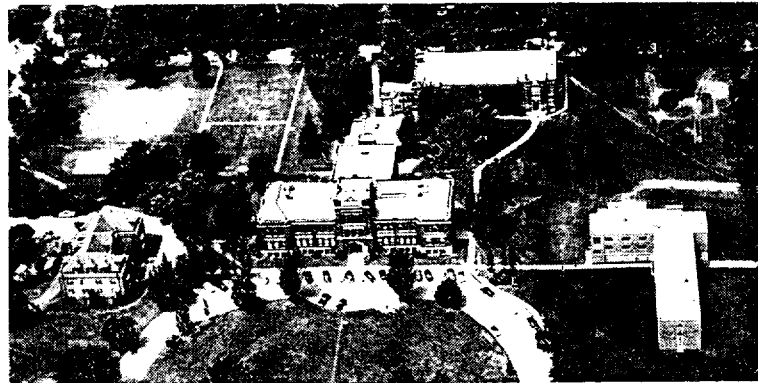

A large portion of the endowment was tied up in farms which, during the depression years, were almost worthless. The college had found it a struggle, year by year, to keep in operation. And yet, while other institutions were going under, Huron College managed to survive and come through the period of drought, depression, and war. That which Blackburn, French, McCune and others had built faced into the future.

. . 6 . .

Boom, Bust and Bounce — 1946-1958

In the fall of 1946, enrollment leaped suddenly to 307.¹⁰⁶

A year before, the enrollment had been 125. Under the impact of this sudden upturn, the college began to boil. Hammers echoed across the campus as buildings were remodeled to meet the sudden demands on space. Classrooms were installed in the old print shop area on the fourth floor. In the basement of the gymnasium, the "Wigwam" was taking shape. A vet's guidance service was installed on campus.

Westward on the athletic field, foundations were going down for the quonset housing area. In the offices of the administration, midnight oil burned as plans were laid for expansion.

A bowling green, donated by Richard Burn, was installed east of Voorhees Dormitory.¹⁰⁷

Resuming football after the layoff of the war years, Huron College won the first game in the Dakota-Iowa conference, downing Buena Vista 12-0.¹⁰⁶

Baseball was resumed briefly in the spring of 1947.¹⁰⁶

Also in that spring the college inaugurated a short-lived retirement plan for administration and faculty.¹⁰⁷

Enrollment went to 311 in the fall of 1947. Remodeling continued. The stairwell at the south end of Voorhees Hall was finally completed. Construction on a fourth-floor radio studio began. Church contributions helped in modernization of the dormitory. The faculty was increased in size.¹⁰⁸

After a slow start in early games the football Scalpers of 1947 broke loose in the homecoming game against Western Union and rolled to four straight victories.¹⁰⁸

Graduation exercises in 1948 saw the largest class to that date getting diplomas, as 39 graduated.¹⁰⁸

During the year 1948, Prof. Chapin and students completed construction of a 12-inch telescope.¹⁰⁸

Beginning the 1948-1949 term, enrollment leveled off at just above the 300 mark.

Rejoining the South Dakota Intercollegiate conference in 1948, Huron got off to a fast start by winning the basketball championship of the league while posting a 12-1 conference record.¹⁰⁹ This was the first of four straight SDIC championships which finally led, in 1951-1952, to the NAIA playoffs in Kansas City. Wid Trusler coached the team through its first three championships and Ralph Lundeen in the final of the set of four. In 1948-1949, Huron won third place in the regional NAIA playoffs, losing to Valley City in the first round and coming back to drop South Dakota State in the consolation.

In the fall of 1949, college enrollments began a downward slide. The rush of veterans was tapering off. Once again registration of full time students dropped below 300—to 286. The senior class, however, was the largest on record with 60 enrolled during the year.¹¹⁰

The number of full time students had dropped to 250 at midyear, but this was not a fact to bother most people at the college as the basketball team racked up their second straight SDIC championship.¹¹⁰

In the winter of 1949, the death of Grace Finley, for 33 years a faculty member at Huron College, was announced. Mrs. John Pyle, who had been a leader in the "Huron College Association," died in December of 1949.

In 1949 the football team placed second in the SDIC conference.

Pat Johnson won in the Cedric Adams show conducted here, and went on to compete at Minneapolis in November, 1949.

President McDougall and the trustees undoubtedly were concerned with the dropping enrollment, but had already taken the bit in their teeth to push the college forward. In May, 1950, they announced the beginning of a campaign to secure a new dormitory for women.¹¹⁰

In the same month over 50 seniors graduated, setting a record that would stand for eight years.¹¹⁰

With the flood of veterans ebbing, the college made available for sale the trailer housing units secured from the government after the war. The quonset housing units were retained.¹¹¹

By the opening of the school year in 1950, $71,000 had been subscribed to the new dormitory building fund.¹¹¹

College professor Dr. James T. Ross was one of the world scholars assigned to begin translation of original Bible manuscripts.¹¹¹

In the fall of 1950 came one of the largest scholarship legacies ever given to the college. An amount approaching $150,000 was left to the college by Mrs. Ella McNair of Wessington, making possible approximately $2,000 in scholarship funds annually.

The college YMCA and YWCA joined to form the Student Christian Association in 1950.

A Huron College Alumni Directory was published in 1950—the first in many years—after months of labor by Dr. Ella McIntire, college librarian.¹¹¹

After six successful years of use by Huron College, the annual senior planning day originated by Dean Fred Plachy was taken over by the high school principal's group of the state and sponsored on a state-wide basis.¹¹¹

Wid Trusler's crew rolled to their third consecutive basketball title in the winter of 1951, cleaning up the conference with a 14-2 record. The squad lost out to State College in the NAIA regional playoff.¹¹²

Meeting in the spring of 1951 the college trustees executive committee gave approval for the drawing of final plans for a new dormitory. Upon recommendation of Glenn C. Martin, chairman of the building committee, it was recommended to the full board that contract letting be authorized.¹¹¹

Again war had dipped into the campus picture—this time the Korean conflict—reserves were being called up, and those who stayed on campus had to pass deferment tests.¹¹¹

In the fall of 1951, college enrollment dropped to 140, and once again there were those who questioned that the college could survive. Nevertheless, the board of trustees in June gave the "go ahead" signal on a $325,000 dormitory for women. Application was made to the federal government for an allotment of materials (required by the Korean conflict emergency.)¹¹¹

Established in the summer of 1951 was the John P. Williamson Foundation for the education of Dakota Indian young people. The fund was named in honor of the noted pioneer missionary and one-time trustee of Pierre and Huron College.¹¹³

By August, 1951, almost $100,000 had been subscribed toward construction of the dormitory. Ground-breaking ceremonies were announced for October, 1951.¹¹²

The Synod began coming to the aid of the college in a real way in the fall of 1951 as the state group voted to attempt a $12,000 fund among its churches.¹¹³

Friends of Grace Finley established a Finley Memorial Record Library.¹¹³

Out of the Korean conflict came notes of great work on the part of Huron College graduate Harold Voelkel, a chaplain, who was working among the North Korean prisoners of war. A high military official later said Voelkel's Christian work was instrumental in creating large groups of Koreans who refused repatriation to the northern zone.¹¹³ Voelkel's book "Behind Barbed Wire In Korea," with an introduction by Billy Graham, had wide distribution.

February, 1952: The college Scalpers won their fourth-in-a-row championship of the SDIC, downed Minot Teachers at Minot 66-58, then North Dakota State in Huron 86-79 to win their first trip to Kansas City and the NAIA national tourney.¹¹³

In February, also, contracts totaling $431,052 were let for construction of the new dormitory. Work began on the structure during the spring.¹¹³

At the NAIA tourney, Huron lost out to Eastern Illinois in the first round.

Closing the 1951-1952 term, Dr. Morris Spencer replaced Noble Gantvoort as dean of the college as Gantvoort accepted a position in another school.¹¹³

Chong Mo Pak, student from Korea, was named student body president for the 1952-1953 term.¹¹⁴

Sandra Hart, a senior, who had previously taken honors in baton twirling, was named Miss South Dakota.

Enrollment in the fall of 1952 rose slightly to 180 full-time students, and the college began the climb back towards enrollments suitable to its facilities and staff. An aggressive admissions program was adopted under the direction of Obed Olson. From that point on, registration numbers would rise rapidly until full-time enrollment reached a peak and set a new record of 380 in 1956-1957.

President McDougall announced his retirement, but then agreed to stay on, at the request of the trustees, until a new president was named.¹¹⁵

A new foundation, the South Dakota Foundation of Private Colleges, was formed in 1952 primarily to seek aid for the five church colleges in the state.¹¹⁵

Dr. V. Gregory Rosemont was a speaker at the University of Minnesota Religion in Life Week. Under Rosemont's direction, the college Testing and Counseling Service had been recognized as one of the best in the nation.¹¹⁵

Carold Heier was named "Little All-American" in football.

The Huron DAILY PLAINSMAN in 1952 began its popular Plainsman Holiday Tournament series, matching Huron with Concordia, Minn., in the finals. The Scalpers lost by five points. The four-year reign of the Scalpers in the SDIC was ended in the final game of the season as Northern edged the Scalpers 77-76.¹¹⁶

Dr. Daniel E. Kerr was named Huron College's tenth president in the winter of 1953. Kerr at the time of his appointment was pastor at Carthage, Missouri, and had previous college experience at the University of Iowa, Lincoln College, and Illinois College. He had also been a chaplain in the Navy. Kerr took over administration of the college shortly after commencement, 1953.¹¹⁵

During commencement 1953, the college observed its 70th anniversary with a special Bulletin edited by Cleata Thorpe and the creation of an anniversary scholarship fund given by several prominent college graduates.¹¹⁵

In the summer of 1953, construction of the new dormitory was rushing toward completion. During the same summer, Charles Reeves, alumnus of 1915, was in the state for Griffenhagen and Associates, studying state-supported institutions. Across the Pacific, Stanley Yoon, alumnus of 1928 and a former assemblyman of the Republic of Korea, was named Minister of Transportation for South Korea.¹¹⁷

September-October, 1953, the college became a bee-hive of activity. With 121 freshmen enrolling, total registration of full-time students jumped suddenly from the 180 of 1952 to 231. Dr. Kerr was inaugurated president. The new dormitory opened formally. "Top brass" of the Presbyterian Church were at the college for Synod sessions and other ceremonies. South Dakota Governor Sigurd Anderson spoke. The college marked its 30th annual Pow Wow Day.¹¹⁷

The dormitory, with a final cost of approximately $450,000, was called the finest in the Midwest. With room for 99 girls, it also provided a new cafeteria and dining space for all college personnel.¹¹⁷

Featured speaker for Kerr's inauguration was former president Harry Gage, who had taken part in most presidential inauguration ceremonies since his own term as president.¹¹⁷

The first annual Huron College Roll Call campaign was launched. In the newly-redecorated chapel, the Glenn Martin Memorial Pulpit and Ludwig Hohm Memorial Organ were dedicated. A curriculum study which would strongly alter the number and nature of courses offered was begun. A publicity department became a part of the administration.¹¹⁷

The second Plainsman Tourney saw the Scalpers emerge as champions, downing Chadron, Nebr., in the finals.¹¹⁸

With the Autumn issue in 1954 the college bulletin changed to a magazine format and was issued quarterly instead of on a monthly basis.¹¹⁷

A new record in freshman classes was marked in the fall of 1954, with 144 first-year students registering on a full-time basis. Over-all enrollment went to 290—a gain of 110 over a two-year span.¹¹⁹

Organized in the fall of 1954 was the first Circle K Club in the midwest. Students Dale Lemke and Jim Klassen organized this affiliate of Kiwanis International on the Huron campus. Also organized was a chapter of the Future Teachers of America.¹²⁰

A. M. Urquhart presented a world-wide curio collection to the college during the winter of 1954, and the collection was put on display with Professor Gene Denison as curator.¹¹⁹

Dr. James T. Ross was named vice president of the National Association of Bible Instructors regional group.¹¹⁹

On November 23, 1954, came the death of Elizabeth Reid, long-time professor of English at the college. One of the most influential of "Huron College People," she had taught at the college from 1900 to 1941.¹¹⁹

Senior student Jake Hawley became the first college athlete to receive the "Most Valuable Player" award of the Huron Quarterback Club.¹²⁰

Another student, Ted McFarling, was named a state legislator while a junior at the college.¹¹⁹

A television play by college publicity man Garner Horton was broadcast on a Sioux City station in March, 1955.¹²⁰

Student Beverly Jones won state competition in oratory and made a strong showing in national competition.¹²⁰

Jim Williams and Don Reynen from the student body along with Prof. J. Stafford Weeks were named to official posts with the Ikota District of the YM-YWCA.¹²⁰

Summer, 1955: Leo Podolsky, world-famous pianist, conducted a workshop on campus. Prof. Paul Royer arranged the workshop.¹²⁰

Attendance at the 1955 commencement reunion boomed to 160.¹¹⁹

Registration in the fall of 1955 brought enrollment up to 330, an increase of 40 over the previous year.¹²¹

The college resumed publication of a student handbook. Aided by a new student union fee, redecoration of the Wigwam began.¹²² The Alumni Association later aided in this project.

The new group of Future Teachers of America was named the Ella McIntire Chapter in honor of the college's long-time librarian.¹²²

Don Mendel, senior student, was one of ten national finalists in the choosing of a debate team to tour Britain. Mendel competed with speakers from some of the nation's largest colleges in winning his finalist spot.¹²²

The Alumni Association bought new uniforms for the college band.¹²¹

A Memorial Fund in memory of Elizabeth Reid was started. Currently a book award is given each year from the fund.

Morine Nyquist, college band director, published his 40th piece of music in 1955.¹²¹

A 1956 survey of alumni showed that 13% of all graduates remained in the city of Huron after graduation and that 36% remained in South Dakota. The largest single group of grads went into teaching careers with a very large percentage ending up in college work.¹²¹

Two new programs were inaugurated during the 1955-1956 school year. First was an honors study program for seniors at the college. Second was the Dakota Honors Competition for high school seniors, with awards given in math-science, English, business, and social science.¹²¹

In the spring of 1956 death came to Louise French, Huron College teacher from 1914 to 1939.¹²¹

The Alumni Association at the 1956 commencement inaugurated a coffee session for alumni in addition to the traditional banquet.¹²¹

Huron College's golf team, coached by Gene Denison, took the SDIC championship at the 1956 field meet.¹²²

"Citations for Distinguished Service" became one of the most important programs of the Alumni Association in the 1956 commencement. First to receive the awards, made by the association for "a distinguished record of service reflecting credit upon their alma mater," were Dr. Welcome Wood, Miriam Speirs, and Gladys Pyle.¹²¹ Among those receiving honorary degrees was Harold Lumb '33 and Percy Smith, '23.

Announced at commencement time was the retirement of Dr. Ella McIntire—"Miss Mac"—who had been college librarian since 1909. "Miss Mac," along with a very few others, had come to mean Huron College to hundreds of former students. No one knew more intimately the past of the college—its history and (with her phenomenal memory for names) its students. In recognition of her service and influence, a special ceremony was held at the college.¹²³

In the autumn of 1956 note was made that Thomas Schreiber was the oldest living graduate of the college and the sole surviving four-year graduate of Pierre U.¹²³

All-time enrollment figures tumbled in September of 1956 as 380 full-time students signed up, exceeding by 30 the previous all-time high. The freshman class of 145 was also the largest in that category, as was the class of 81 juniors.¹²³

Under the pressure of the increased enrollment, a fifth college society was formed and named the Philocharmian.¹²⁴

Note was made that four brothers were enrolled in Huron College at the same time. They were Daryl, Dale, Dennis, and Darwin Stahl.¹²⁴

The fall of 1956 was the year of the on-again, off-again football championship for Huron College. Losing only to Northern in a season which saw the powerful Scalpers rack up 40 points per game again and again, the conference late in the fall named Huron champions after Northern forfeited due to the using of an ineligible player. Shortly after being named champion, a state sportswriter discovered that a Huron player's transcript, as held by Huron College, contained an error, and that the player was ineligible. Although a victim of circumstance, the college forfeited and Southern Teachers were in turn named champions. Something that could not be taken away was Huron's rank of third in total offense among the nation's small colleges.¹²⁴

Student Beverly Jones, following in the footsteps of an earlier Huron College woman (Catherine McCune) was named one of two student representatives on the national board of Pi Kappa Delta, forensics society. Forensics director Harold Larson was also named to a national committee for the society's meet at Brookings.¹²⁴

Professor Paul Royer was named as one of the nation's teachers to receive a Danforth Grant for graduate study.¹²³

March, 1957: Huron College debators tied with St. Thomas College for top honors in the University of Nebraska discussion and debate meet. Students Nancy Ellsworth and Beverly Jones went undefeated at the meet, while Harlan Dybdahl and Jim Kirk lost only one.¹²⁴

Dr. Morris Spencer resigned as dean of the college.¹²⁴

Nineteen hundred and fifty-seven was the spring of the "freak" student association election at the college. In initial voting, Charles Kaufman and James Williams led the pack but did not get a majority. In the run-off election, the vote was a dead heat—155 to 155. Resolving the problem, student government assigned Williams as president during the first semester of 1957-1958 and Kaufman as president for the second semester.¹²⁵

Speaker for the 1957 commencement was Robert E. Wilson, chairman of the board of Standard Oil. At the commencement, 57 seniors graduated, tying the all-time record of 1950. Among those honored with doctorates were Miriam Speirs and Orlin Walder, both graduates of the college.¹²⁵

The college golf team grabbed its second successive SDIC title, with LeRoy Gunderson winning individual honors.¹²⁴

Frank Smith was named as dean of the college.¹²⁴

For the second successive year, a Huron College speaker won state honors and went into national competition. This time it was Deronda Rea. In addition to the state, Miss Rea won the Western U. S. division and placed sixth in the national finals.¹²⁴

The Alumni Association altered its directing staff and named, for the first time a national president in the person of Fern Spencer Barber.¹²⁵

Beginning its 75th anniversary term since the founding in 1883, Huron College had an enrollment of 355 full-time students, and a record senior class of 72.¹²⁵ A 75th anniversary planning committee headed by William Churchill began operations.

Stung by the on-again, off-again championship picture of the previous fall, Huron College's football team left no doubt as to their mastery of the SDIC in the fall of 1957, winning the college's first undisputed title since 1928.

Under Athletic Director James Long and assistant coaches Darrell Mudra and Gil Peterson, the Scalpers ran up seven straight victories, ending with a 41-20 conquest of previously undefeated Northern Teachers. The Huron team averaged near 40 points a game for the season, and was first among the nation's small colleges in rushing and total offense. The Scalpers' Garney Henley also was among the national leaders in individual rushing and scoring, although playing less than half of many games. Henley captured the SDIC scoring crown for the second year in a row and was named to two national little All-American squads. Five Scalpers—Henley, Gary Wiren, Tuby Gunderson, Cal Champion, and Sonny Coyle, were named to the all-conference team.¹²⁶

In the sixth annual Daily Plainsman Tourney, the Scalpers lost a squeaker to Gustavus Adolphus in the first round but came back for consolation honors by downing South Dakota State College in a one-sided game.¹²⁶

James Williams, senior student, was named regional chairman of the YMCA.¹²⁶

And so the college came to the incidence of its 75th anniversary.

The two buildings on the naked hills at Pierre had become five buildings on a pleasantly foliated campus in Huron. Enrollment had grown from 4 to a peak of 380 during those years. Some 3,000 students had passed through the college halls, with 1,300 or more earning degrees. Plant value had increased from $3,000 to in excess of $1,000,000; endowment from nothing to just less than $1,000,000. While Pierre operated in its first year on $1,600, 1958 operation consumed above $330,000. Of this amount, $272,000 was income before gifts.

The number and variety of courses offered expanded greatly during the 75-year period, with numerous new fields entered, and the classical idea molding into modern liberal arts programs.

As the 75th anniversary came to the college, the largest senior class ever to graduate, numbering 67, received degrees.

The future was being considered, also. On administrative minds was the need for a new library and a new dormitory for men. Beyond that was the need for increased financial support to wipe out yearly deficits.

Some beginnings had been made. During the 1956-1957 term, students undertook a "Pennies for Posterity" campaign for a new library. Although the campaign is temporarily inactive, groups are planning its revival. Another beginning was the adoption by the Synod of South Dakota of a new Benevolence program which could mean greatly increased support for the college. The Alumni Association, too, was making plans for a more regular system of acquiring an alumni fund.

What were the prospects at the 75th year? Student enrollment was expected to reach around 600 by 1968. Under this pressure plant value would have to go to $1,600,000 or more with new buildings added. Endowment should reach toward $1,500,000 at the same time, and an operational budget of $500,000 could be expected. This was the "forward look" over ten years.

So, this is where the "Pioneer College" stands at its 75th birthday. The seed planted at Pierre has grown, weathered all crises, and flourished. Huron College people now stand ready to carry the dream and the vision of the founders forward into the future.
